Report Goldberg Wants To Resign From U.N. Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg is considering resigning soon from his post as top U.S. representative at the United Nations. Goldberg has discussed his resignation with President Johnson and it is understood that Johnson is agreeable to his desires.

U.S. To Call For U.N. Talk On Viet War

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States is expected to call for a meeting of the U.N. Security Council soon to launch new attempts toward a negotiated settlement of the Vietnam war, informed sources said today.

The sources predicted U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg would relay a request from the White House for a meeting of the 15-nation council some time this month.

A U.S. informant said he assumed that "my boss might come back from Washington with some further information on the timing of the council session."

Goldberg spent Wednesday in Washington for a Cabinet meeting, and it was generally believed that he discussed the Senate resolution adopted last week asking President Johnson to end the war before the United Nations.

There was speculation that further U.S. action may have been delayed by differences which have arisen with Saigon over participation of the Communist Viet Cong in any council debate on Vietnam.

The split came into the open after it was learned that the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front had expressed a desire in October to send representatives to the United Nations.

A State Department spokesman referred inquiring newsmen to Goldberg's statement to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Nov. 2. Goldberg said the United States would vote in favor of the Viet Cong participating in a council meeting on the war.

Robert J. McCloskey, department press officer, said Tuesday that Prime Minister Nguyen Van Loc of South Vietnam has informed Washington the Viet Cong representative arrested in Saigon last week was attempting to reach the U.S. Embassy.

Department officials have said privately the National Liberation Front (Viet Cong) approached the U.N. Secretariat last October, apparently to ask for a U.N. hearing.

McCloskey said the only reason he made any statement on the Saigon incident was to clarify what he called misleading stories quoting Loc as saying the Viet Cong had already made preliminary contact with the embassy.

Reports Show Thailand a 'New Vietnam'

EGLEIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP) — U.S. planes are now bombing Communist infiltration routes into Thailand from Laos, military sources report.

These same sources say: —The Communists have sought to counter the raids by positioning anti-aircraft guns and surface-to-air missiles in the extreme northeastern corner of Thailand.

—Some American planes have been shot down over Thailand although there has been no official statement on the losses.

by him and the President for him to leave his post.

Goldberg spent Wednesday in Washington, attending a Cabinet meeting and conferring with administration officials.

Afterward it was learned he had talked with the President on several occasions, going back some time, about ending his career at the U.N.

Goldberg, 59, has been Johnson's ambassador to the world organization since July 1965. He has told friends he does not consider himself a career public official and is understood to have been interested in returning to the private practice of law, probably in New York.

However, there has also been speculation he might be returned to the Supreme Court by the President when a vacancy develops there. Goldberg left the high court at the President's request to take the U.N. assignment following the death of Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson.

He earlier served in the Cabinet of President John F. Kennedy as labor secretary, bringing to that job years of experience as a lawyer and negotiator in the labor field.

Goldberg is known in government circles and at the U.N. as a "dove" on issues arising out of the Vietnam war and there have been reports from time to time he was dissatisfied with administration handling of war policy problems.

On several occasions Goldberg has been the spokesman for U.S. statements defining Vietnam war and peace aims and calling on North Vietnam to negotiate.

Heart Patient Doing Well; Infant Dies

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Louis Washkansky left his sterilized room today for the first time since the historic transplant operation four days ago replaced his failing heart with a healthy one.

Washkansky, in the second day of a week-long critical period during which his body may attempt to reject the alien heart, was wheeled on a bed more than a quarter of a mile through Groote Schuur Hospital to the radiotherapy department for a cobalt treatment intended to prevent rejection.

He was returned to his room 40 minutes later. He received cobalt treatments in his room Tuesday and Wednesday from a hastily built portable radiation device.

Until today, the 55-year-old wholesale grocer had been kept isolated in an oxygen tent because the radiation and drugs designed to overcome the body's tendency to reject foreign substances also leave him more susceptible to infection.

In New York, a 22-member surgical team carried out the world's second reported human heart transplant Wednesday but the heart inserted into the breast of a 2½-week-old boy stopped after 6½ hours. Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz, the chief surgeon, said he did not know why the heart—from a child with a fatal brain lesion—failed.

Taxis Try Out Water Bumper

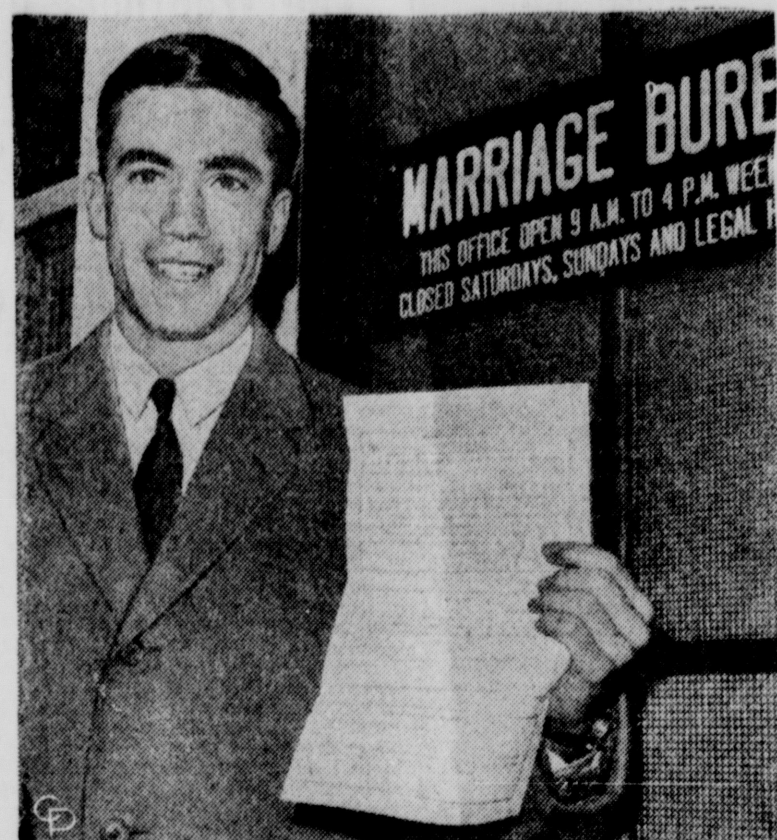

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Two Portland taxi companies are trying out a water-filled bumper that is said to take much of the shock out of crashes. Kermit Stewart, the manager of one of the firms, test the bumper by having a man drive him into the side of the taxicab office.

"It only moved me just a little bit," Stewart said.

These disclosures, made Wednesday by officers here, appear to indicate a worsening insurgency situation for the Thais, confronted more and more with Communist penetration of their borders.

The problem has required some American actions similar to early U.S. efforts in South Vietnam, officers said. They declined to be specific but said the actions involve U.S. air commandos in Thailand.

New Year Liquor Problems for Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — That grand old man known as 1967 soon slips behind the times, his parting gesture one of liberal sobriety for many Ohioans.

In apparent collaboration with the Gregorian Calendar, the wizened year has seen to it that celebrants will sing "Auld Lang Syne" with empty cups—at least around the nightclub circuit.

New Year's Eve falls on a liquorless Sunday. Under stern state laws, nothing but 3.2 beer can pass over the bar.

So it appears many Ohioans will resort to hearty and home for ushering in celebrations.

State liquor officials say the law will be enforced to the fullest measure and agents won't look the other way so that liquor violations might escape detection.

State Liquor Director Donald C. Cook warned Wednesday that education may not get all of a promised $25 million bonus because of sagging liquor sales and the illegal transport of liquor into Ohio.

Cook said a "wet" Christmas could salvage the Liquor Department's plan to give education the huge bonus. But it presently is endangered because of higher prices of liquor in state stores and bootleggers.

In 1966, the department supplied $67 million for education.

Liquor prices were boosted an average of 11.3 per cent per bottle in state stores last July. Cook said the price hike was designed to provide a bonus for education.

But it may backfire. Cook said Ohioans are not drinking less, but are finding out-of-state dealers to sustain their imbibing spirit at a smaller cost.

The real headache right now, says Cook, is caused by Ohio River "runners" bringing liquor into the state from Kentucky, famed for its bourbon. Liquor is cheaper in Kentucky.

OSU Group Seeks Cash

YELLOW SPRINGS, Ohio (AP) — Several Negro students from Central State University—one charging America is a fascist society—took their case to students at another college Wednesday night "to get our brother off the hook."

The rally at Antioch College here was held to raise money for legal expenses of about 100 students arrested during a Nov. 13 riot at predominantly Negro Central State in nearby Wilberforce.

"This whole society is a fascist organization," charged one youth who called himself Alton X and said he was the chief justice of Central State's student court.

Mike Warren, 23, who was expelled from Central State last month, asserted that "black people should control our education system."

Warren was expelled for allegedly threatening Rembert Stokes, president of Wilberforce University, another predominantly Negro school. The riot began after Warren returned to campus Nov. 13.

Funeral services for Dr. Hargrave, a professor of education, are scheduled here at 11 a. m. Friday.

Congress Eyes Adjournment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only the possibility of last-minute disputes over antipoverty and foreign aid bills appears threatening plans to adjourn Congress by the end of next week.

A controversial meat inspection measure cleared both houses Wednesday and leaders expect action before adjournment on such major bills as Social Security benefit increases, hikes in postal rates and federal pay, and perhaps elementary and secondary education.

Left behind until next year in the drive for adjournment will be such bills as interest disclosure, higher education, crime prevention, civil rights and President Johnson's proposed 10 per cent income tax surcharge.

In a move related to the tax proposal, Senate House conferees finally agreed late Wednesday on a proposal aimed at cutting planned federal spending by some $4.1 billion this year. The spending cut is attached to a normally routine measure to keep agencies going which have not received their annual appropriations.

Rep. Frank T. Bow, R-Ohio, said he will try to increase the spending cut to $5.7 billion. Expected approval of the measure next week will mean an end to the threat of payless paydays for government workers in the Peace Corps, Agency for International Development and Office of Economic Opportunity.

Speaker John W. McCormack told a news conference Wednesday he thinks a Dec. 15 adjournment is possible, and Democratic Leader Carl B. Albert told applauding members later, "We are looking forward and hoping we will be able to adjourn the Congress late next week."

Albert also announced the second session of the 90th Congress would start Jan. 15.

Credit Cards Used for Taxes

Recognizing that paying taxes can be burdensome for those short of cash, the Board of Supervisors says it will allow property owners to pay their local taxes with a bank credit card.

Cincinnati, New York City Sites of Antiwar Protests

CINCINNATI (AP) — Police dragged scores of anti-war demonstrators out of a hallway of the Federal Office Building today when they sat down outside the Armed Forces Induction Center.

The demonstrators—many of them bearded youths with long hair—were carried to a freight elevator and taken to the rear of the building where police had set up a mobile photographing unit.

Other demonstrators who sat down in the street to block the way for paddy wagons going to Central Police Station also were arrested.

Police warned each group of demonstrators that they were violating the law and asked them to leave before arresting them.

More than 40 had been arrested by 9:30 a. m. and perhaps 30 more remained in the hall.

In New York City, antiwar demonstrators, outnumbered and outmaneuvered by police in two attempts to disrupt the downtown armed forces induction center, say they have new tactics to try.

Leaders of the demonstration, in a meeting Wednesday night to assess their lack of success, blamed plainclothes police infiltrators in their ranks with sowing confusion and giving contradictory orders.

Spokesmen for the sponsoring

Stop the Draft Week Committee said the new tactics today could include dividing the demonstrators into small groups and picketing any of 100 "targets" throughout the city related directly or indirectly to the draft.

Although the demonstrators Wednesday doubled their Tuesday turnout to 2,000 the police had increased their own forces to maintain about a 2 to 1 numerical edge and the resulting rows of bluecoats left the generally young marchers no place to go.

When their forays at the center were foiled some of the frustrated marchers took off on a four-mile trek uptown to the Waldorf Astoria hotel where Secretary of State Dean Rusk was speaking.

Later the group moved on to Grand Central terminal where they milled about chanting slogans and then to the United Nations headquarters on the East River. Police physically broke up the crowd there and the protest was finished for the day.

Painesville Youth Faces Execution

PAINESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Sixteen-year-old Fred M. Escherick Jr. awaited today a sentence of death in the electric chair for the bayonet stabbing of his father in their home here last May 5.

The death penalty, last imposed in Lake County 40 years ago, was made mandatory by a jury verdict Wednesday night which found the boy guilty of first-degree murder without recommendation of mercy.

Common Pleas Judge John F. Clair Jr. adjourned court shortly before 10 p.m. without passing sentence. The jury of 10 men and two women had the case 12 hours before reaching their verdict.

Young Escherick, who spent his 16th birthday last Oct. 5 in jail, put his head in his hands and bent over in his chair, sobbing when he heard the verdict read.

His attorneys, Henry D. Rand Jr. and John S. Nelson, who tried to comfort him, said they would consider an appeal. Rand said he was confident "some action" would be taken to avert execution of Escherick, who would be one of the youngest persons ever to be electrocuted in Ohio Penitentiary.

The youth, a sophomore at Painesville Harvey High School when the crime was committed last spring, also was convicted of a second count that charged him with intent to kill his mother, Mrs. Aldona S. Escherick, 48.

"I never expected first-degree," said Nelson. The defense had argued that the boy had not intended to kill either of his adoptive parents and that the bayonet was rammed into the father's heart accidentally.

County Prosecutor Fred V. Skok also indicated surprise at the verdict in his first capital case since becoming prosecutor in 1960.

"I will have as much difficulty sleeping tonight as I have had since I became involved in this particular case," Skok said. "You don't look at cases like this in terms of victory or defeat. This is duty."

The defendant's mother was not in court at the verdict. In the trial, which began Nov. 20, she testified she saw the boy stab her husband and that he then struck her.

CHICAGO (AP) — A soldier from Ohio was taken into custody at O'Hare International Airport early today after, police said, he telephoned the Ohio governor's mansion and threatened to kill himself unless released from the Army.

Police turned the soldier, David Phillips, 19, of Mansfield, Ohio, over the military police who took him to Great Lakes Naval Hospital.

Officers said Phillips, calling from a booth at the airport, reached John McElroy, an aide to Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes in Columbus who said he would do what he could. McElroy phoned the Suicide Prevention Center in Chicago, asking officials there to control the soldier, police related.

An unidentified airport security guard, noting the soldier sitting in the phone booth, told police the youth appeared worried so he asked if anything was wrong. The guard said the soldier reported he was absent without leave from the Army and that he would kill himself rather than return to it.

The guard persuaded Phillips to call the Suicide Prevention Center himself, and the center referred the young man to the "crisis answering service" at Chicago State Hospital.

A hospital official maintained a running conversation with Phillips allowing him to tell his troubles. While he was talking, police, called by the airport guard, quietly took the soldier into custody.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has sent to President Johnson legislation he says will guarantee American families that the meat on their tables is safe and fit to eat.

Both houses of Congress completed favorable action on Wednesday on the bill extending federal meat inspection standards to all packing and processing plants.

Up to now, only meat sold in interstate commerce has been federally inspected.

The bill gives the states a minimum of two years to establish federally approved inspection programs for meat produced and sold within their borders. If a state fails to act, the federal government would step in to impose its own standards.

Red Artillery Pours Shells Into Position

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese gunners hit the U.S. Marine forward post at Con Thien Wednesday with the heaviest artillery barrage in more than two months and probed a nearby Marine position with a ground attack.

In the same area just below the demilitarized zone, a Marine fighter-bomber supporting the ground troops accidentally dropped a bomb on the perimeter of American positions and added to the U.S. casualties.

The barrage of 276 rounds of artillery and mortar fire and the ground probe by an estimated company of North Vietnamese killed seven Marines and wounded 77, the U.S. Command said. The accidental bombing killed another five Leathernecks.

The Marines reported killing three North Vietnamese.

Headquarters said the artillery barrage included 60, 82 and big 120mm mortar and 85mm artillery rounds. A spokesman said it was the heaviest barrage since Sept. 25, when Communist gunners slammed more than 1,000 rounds of artillery and mortar into Con Thien, which was under virtual artillery siege during the entire month of September. The Marines suffered nearly 1,000 casualties then.

Simultaneously on Wednesday, units of the 4th Marine Regiment 2½ miles northeast of Con Thien came under a four-hour attack by an estimated company of perhaps 150 North Vietnamese who opened up with small arms, machine guns and

Ohio Nixon Supporters Organize

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Crusade for Nixon, Inc., got under way Wednesday when Secretary of State Ted W. Brown issued the group a non-profit charter.

Headquartered in Columbus, the group is backing former Vice President Richard M. Nixon as a Republican candidate for president in 1968.

C. William Brownfield of Columbus filed the article for incorporation.

Nixon is one of the leading Republican presidential prospects—although he has not announced for office.

He recently conferred in Columbus with prominent Ohio GOP members without disclosing his plans.

"Our main purpose in beginning, prior to the 1968 GOP convention, is to demonstrate a substantial number of Ohio residents are interested in electing Nixon to the presidency," Brownfield said.

He explained the organization will have chairmen in every Ohio county whose primary task will be to circulate petitions supporting Nixon's candidacy.

U.S. To Call For U.N. Talk On Viet War

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States is expected to call for a meeting of the U.N. Security Council soon to launch new attempts toward a negotiated settlement of the Vietnam war, informed sources said today.

Ohio Soldier Being Held In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — A soldier from Ohio was taken into custody at O'Hare International Airport early today after, police said, he telephoned the Ohio governor's mansion and threatened to kill himself unless released from the Army.

Police turned the soldier, David Phillips, 19, of Mansfield, Ohio, over the military police who took him to Great Lakes Naval Hospital.

Officers said Phillips, calling from a booth at the airport, reached John McElroy, an aide to Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes in Columbus who said he would do what he could. McElroy phoned the Suicide Prevention Center in Chicago, asking officials there to control the soldier, police related.

An unidentified airport security guard, noting the soldier sitting in the phone booth, told police the youth appeared worried so he asked if anything was wrong. The guard said the soldier reported he was absent without leave from the Army and that he would kill himself rather than return to it.

The guard persuaded Phillips to call the Suicide Prevention Center himself, and the center referred the young man to the "crisis answering service" at Chicago State Hospital.

A hospital official maintained a running conversation with Phillips allowing him to tell his troubles. While he was talking, police, called by the airport guard, quietly took the soldier into custody.

The Chicago Suicide Prevention Center is a private agency.

Inspection Bill Goes to LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has sent to President Johnson legislation he says will guarantee American families that the meat on their tables is safe and fit to eat.

Both houses of Congress completed favorable action on Wednesday on the bill extending federal meat inspection standards to all packing and processing plants.

Up to now, only meat sold in interstate commerce has been federally inspected.

The bill gives the states a minimum of two years to establish federally approved inspection programs for meat produced and sold within their borders. If a state fails to act, the federal government would step in to impose its own standards.

Red Artillery Pours Shells Into Position

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese gunners hit the U.S. Marine forward post at Con Thien Wednesday with the heaviest artillery barrage in more than two months and probed a nearby Marine position with a ground attack.

In the same area just below the demilitarized zone, a Marine fighter-bomber supporting the ground troops accidentally dropped a bomb on the perimeter of American positions and added to the U.S. casualties.

The barrage of 276 rounds of artillery and mortar fire and the ground probe by an estimated company of North Vietnamese killed seven Marines and wounded 77, the U.S. Command said. The accidental bombing killed another five Leathernecks.

The Marines reported killing three North Vietnamese.

Headquarters said the artillery barrage included 60, 82 and big 120mm mortar and 85mm artillery rounds. A spokesman said it was the heaviest barrage since Sept. 25, when Communist gunners slammed more than 1,000 rounds of artillery and mortar into Con Thien, which was under virtual artillery siege during the entire month of September. The Marines suffered nearly 1,000 casualties then.

Simultaneously on Wednesday, units of the 4th Marine Regiment 2½ miles northeast of Con Thien came under a four-hour attack by an estimated company of perhaps 150 North Vietnamese who opened up with small arms, machine guns and

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Crusade for Nixon, Inc., got under way Wednesday when Secretary of State Ted W. Brown issued the group a non-profit charter.

Headquartered in Columbus, the group is backing former Vice President Richard M. Nixon as a Republican candidate for president in 1968.

C. William Brownfield of Columbus filed the article for incorporation.

Nixon is one of the leading Republican presidential prospects—although he has not announced for office.

He recently conferred in Columbus with prominent Ohio GOP members without disclosing his plans.

"Our main purpose in beginning, prior to the 1968 GOP convention, is to demonstrate a substantial number of Ohio residents are interested in electing Nixon to the presidency," Brownfield said.

He explained the organization will have chairmen in every Ohio county whose primary task will be to circulate petitions supporting Nixon's candidacy.

Reports Show Thailand a 'New Vietnam'

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP) — U.S. planes are now bombing Communist infiltration routes into Thailand from Laos, military sources report.

These same sources say: —The Communists have sought to counter the raids by positioning antiaircraft guns and surface-to-air missiles in the extreme northeastern corner of Thailand.

—Some American planes have been shot down over Thailand although there has been no official statement on the losses.

These disclosures, made Wednesday by officers here, appear to indicate a worsening insurgency situation for the Thais, confronted more and more with Communist penetration of their borders.

The problem has required some American actions similar to early U.S. efforts in South Vietnam, officers said. They declined to be specific but said the actions involve U.S. air commandos in Thailand.

Eglin AFB is a major Air Force Tactical Command facility where air commandos—Air Force counterparts to the Army's Green Berets special forces—are trained.

Earlier last year the Pentagon acknowledged U.S.-flown helicopters were being used to ferry Thai troops into the north, east section for counterinsurgency operations.

But the Pentagon said then that U.S. pilots were under strict orders to avoid involvement in combat and would be replaced as soon as enough Thai chopper pilots had been trained.

The United States has undertaken a major buildup in Thailand the last few years with total American strength now exceeding 35,000 men, including some 1,000 air commandos. The commandos help train Thais in counterinsurgency operations.

Earlier this year both the U.S. and Thai governments acknowledged for the first time that many American air attacks on enemy supply lines and positions in South Vietnam were originating from Thailand bases. Nothing was said about bombing inside Thailand.

Since then, B52 bombers have been moved from Guam to Thailand to cut flying time to targets in South Vietnam as well as Laos.

The Air Force is reserving the B52s for the bigger operations in Vietnam and is sending World War II-vintage B26s—now designated A26s—on the Thai bombing runs.

Officers here say U.S. pilots—not Thais—are piloting the bombing flights along the northeastern border of the country. They indicated the raids have been under way some time using A26s supplied to Thailand last year.

CHS Guidance Explained By City Superintendent

By FRIT JACOBS

Superintendent, City Schools

The guidance program staff of the Circleville City Schools consists of three certificated counselors, two at Circleville High School and one at Circleville Junior High.

Richard Fisher and Doris Gillespie serve at the High School and James Kolwicz at the Junior High. Counseling consists of both individual and group techniques. A good portion of the guidance time is spent with individual students. The cardinal principle in guidance work is to have the student make his own decisions and to accept the responsibility for those decisions.

The basic function of the counselor is to help young people discover and develop their potential abilities and to discover a feeling of personal identity. Harold Howe II, U.S. Commissioner of Education declares that "Counseling probably is the most significant improvement in our schools during the last decade."

Another aspect of counseling which receives important emphasis is in the area of educational and vocational planning to meet current and future needs. The counselor attempts to assist the student in relating interests, aptitudes and abilities to educational and occupational opportunity. Collection of available information about careers, educational opportunity and curriculum offering which is then made available to students and parents, is an important part of every counselor's duties.

Follow-up studies recently initiated as a part of the duties of the guidance office have revealed that over 50 per cent of the students graduating are pursuing some type of additional formal education. Presently the guidance staff is locating over 800 graduates from the last four graduating classes to determine the procedures for another follow-up study.

The value of these studies is not simply to know what graduates are doing but to determine if curriculum offerings are available to meet the needs of graduates as they enter various career fields, military service or educational programs.

The guidance staff evaluates the characteristics of interests, abilities and aptitudes by administering standardized tests and inventories and by interpreting the results to students. Grades, teacher ratings, health and attendance records and extra curricular activities, in addition to tests may also indicate to the counselor a student's future.

Students with special needs or problems are referred to agencies equipped to meet their needs. Recently some students

School Districts Transfer Land

The Pickaway County Board of Education transferred a small section of the Westfall School District near Harrisburg to the Southwestern City School District of Franklin County.

Action was taken during the December meeting of the county unit Wednesday it was announced by George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools.

McDowell noted the area involved originally was a part of the Harrisburg district. In 1929, two families that owned the properties requested it be transferred to Darby School District.

A number of houses have been constructed in the area recently. It is closer to schools in the Southwest District and the children have been attending school there without paying tuition McDowell said.

bazooka-type rockets. Marine fighter-bombers, artillery and helicopter gunships finally drove the Communists off.

The United States countered with two raids by B52 bombers above and below Con Thien, naval gunfire from destroyers off shore and strikes by tactical fighter-bombers against the Communist gun positions and supply routes.

In one raid today, the eight-engine B52s dropped thousands of pounds of bombs on roads and military facilities 30 miles above the DMZ which feed men and supplies to the 35,000 North Vietnamese troops believed to be threatening Con Thien and other Marine outposts below the frontier.

In a second raid today, the big bombers pounded Communist buildup areas four miles west-southwest of Con Thien.

U.S. Air Force, Marine and Navy jet fighters also hit scores of targets just inside North Vietnam Wednesday in a concentrated effort to cut supplies heading south to the frontier.

The Navy reported that the destroyer Leary knocked out one artillery and one mortar position and touched off two secondary explosions and a fire in the southern portion of the demilitarized zone.

Other action flared in the critical northernmost areas of South Vietnam. Communist gunners fired 35 mortar rounds into a Marine unit six miles south of Hue, the old imperial capital which is 60 miles south of the zone. Six Marines were killed and six were wounded.

Just to the southeast of the big Marine base at Da Nang, two Marines were killed and 13 wounded when Communist patrols made two grenade attacks on a small base camp early Wednesday.

But 40 miles south of Da Nang, 38 of the 40 members of a Viet Cong platoon surrendered at a South Vietnamese government outpost, saying that after a year of almost continuous fighting they were weary of war, feared death and lacked food.

A U.S. spokesman said it was the largest mass surrender so far in the war.

TV Radiation Probe Slated

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Electronics Industries Association has been asked by the U.S. Public Health Service to take part in a nationwide check for radiation from TV sets.

The health service said Wednesday an extensive survey of TV sets in Pinellas County, Fla., indicates radiation danger found in some General Electric Co. color television sets may be an industry-wide problem.

Excessive radiation from some big screen GE color sets was discovered last July. Since then, the health service said, 112,000 potentially dangerous receivers have been located and corrected. About 9,000 receivers have not been found.

The potential for biological damage from TV-radiation is quite low, said Dr. William H. Stewart, U.S. surgeon general. General Electric said in a statement it would continue cooperation with the health service. GE sets involved were those manufactured between September 1966 and May 1967. No problem has been found with black and white sets.

Scientists have yet to find a giant sequoia dying of natural causes.

Welfare Workers Go on Strike

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Welfare workers of Franklin County went on strike today, hindering but not crippling welfare county operations.

Members of Local 1478, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees are striking because county commissioners have not recognized their union.

Now the commissioners plan to invoke the Ferguson Act, seek an injunction halting the strike and dismiss those on strike.

The commissioners took the same action when the union struck the County Home and Alum Crest Hospital 10 days ago. The Ferguson Act prohibits public employe strikes.

An estimated 139 welfare workers are members of the union.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., manager of the bill, said an amendment will be offered to provide some assurances sought by Dixie senators.

Morse said the proposal will involve a fixed date, perhaps Aug. 1, by which the Department of Health, Education and Welfare must announce annually whether a school district will receive federal aid. If a cutoff or denial notice were not issued by then, the district would receive the money throughout the school year starting in September.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., fighting for Russell's amendment, angrily declared orders had come from the White House and HEW to kill all weakening civil rights amendments.

Mansfield and Morse denied this.

But Sen. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, said he could believe Stennis' charge. He said, an amendment he had sponsored, which would have cut the total authorization in the bill by $2.4 billion, was "blitzed by orders which came down from the mountain top."

Mansfield shot back: "The senator from Ohio is off his rocker. No senator in this body is going to take orders from any mystical mountain top."

And Morse chimed in with a smile: "You weren't blitzed. You were outvoted." Lausche's amendment was rejected 54 to 27.

CHS Guidance Explained By City Superintendent

By FRIT JACOBS
Superintendent, City Schools

The guidance program staff of the Circleville City Schools consists of three certificated counselors, two at Circleville High School and one at Circleville Junior High.

Richard Fisher and Doris Gillespie serve at the High School and James Kolwicz at the Junior High. Counseling consists of both individual and group techniques. A good portion of the guidance time is spent with individual students. The cardinal principle in guidance work is to have the student make his own decisions and to accept the responsibility for those decisions.

The basic function of the counselor is to help young people discover and develop their potential abilities and to discover a feeling of personal identity. Harold Howe II, U.S. Commissioner of Education declares that "Counseling probably is the most significant improvement in our schools during the last decade".

Another aspect of counseling which receives important emphasis is in the area of educational and vocational planning to meet current and future needs. The counselor attempts to assist the student in relating interests, aptitudes and abilities to educational and occupational opportunity. Collection of available information about careers, educational opportunity and curricular offering which is then made available to students and parents, is an important part of every counselor's duties.

Follow-up studies recently initiated as a part of the duties of the guidance office have revealed that over 50 per cent of the students graduating are pursuing some type of additional formal education. Presently the guidance staff is locating over 600 graduates from the last four graduating classes to determine the procedures for another follow-up study.

The value of these studies is not simply to know what graduates are doing but to determine if curriculum offerings are available to meet the needs of graduates as they enter various career fields, military service or educational programs.

The guidance staff evaluates the characteristics of interests, abilities and aptitudes by administering standardized tests and inventories and by interpreting the results to students. Grades, teacher ratings, health and attendance records and extra curricular activities, in addition to tests may also indicate to the counselor. Beginning four years ago, now extending through all 12 grades enables teachers and guidance staff to assist students to make appropriate decisions concerning their future.

Students with special needs or problems are referred to agencies equipped to meet their needs. Recently some students have benefitted from such agencies as the Child Welfare Board, Bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation, Scioto-Paint Valley Guidance Center and from local civic groups.

A large amount of time in the Senior High School is spent in providing placement services for students. Services, such as assistance with appropriate choice of school subjects and course of study, transition from one school to another, information to future employers and educational institutions, are provided as needed. Student scheduling is a most important part of the guidance office. Scheduling is originally accomplished by individual conference after curriculum area selection has been explained to grade level groups.

Student and parents have the opportunity to confer with counselors or other school administrators regarding scheduling. Curriculum areas are selected on the basis of interests and aptitudes. Proper placement assists in reducing numbers who leave school voluntarily before graduation.

Close cooperation of counselors, school staff, students, and parents leading to realistic understanding of the student abilities and interests can assist immeasurably individual student's progress in the academic program.

The guidance program is another example of the services provided students of the Circleville City School system.

Excessive radiation from some big screen GE color sets was discovered last July. Since then, the health service said, 112,000 potentially dangerous receivers have been located and corrected. About 9,000 receivers have not been found.

The potential for biological damage from TV-radiation is quite low, said Dr. William H. Stewart, U.S. surgeon general.

General Electric said in a statement it would continue cooperation with the health service. GE sets involved were those manufactured between September 1966 and May 1967. No problem has been found with black and white sets.

Scientists have yet to find a giant sequoia dying of natural causes.

School Aid Fight Flares; Lausche Said 'Off Rocker'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate sponsors of the $14.2 billion aid to education bill have apparent White House backing in efforts to overcome Southern objections to federal school desegregation enforcement procedures.

The new peace-making effort, designed to avoid long debate as Congress heads toward final adjournment, contrasted with bitter words exchanged during Wednesday's session.

At one point, the usually mild-mannered Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield told one senator he was "off his rocker."

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., manager of the bill, said an amendment will be offered to provide some assurances sought by Dixie senators.

Morse said the proposal will involve a fixed date, perhaps Aug. 1, by which the Department of Health, Education and Welfare must announce annually whether a school district will receive federal aid. If a cutoff or denial notice were not issued by then, the district would receive the money throughout the school year starting in September.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., fighting for Russell's amendment, angrily declared orders had come from the White House and HEW to kill all weakening civil rights amendments.

Mansfield and Morse denied this.

But Sen. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, said he could believe Stennis' charge. He said, an amendment he had sponsored, which would have cut the total authorization in the bill by $2.4 billion, was "blitzed by orders which came down from the mountain top."

Mansfield shot back: "The senator from Ohio is off his rocker. No senator in this body is going to take orders from any mystical mountain top."

And Morse chimed in with a smile: "You weren't blithed. You were outvoted." Lausche's amendment was rejected 54 to 27.

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Argentine navy helicopters lifted 14 Argentine researchers from the Antarctic island of Deception Tuesday night amid bubbling, boiling seas from the eruption of an old volcano.

The 14 Argentines were the last to be evacuated from the island after the volcano exploded unexpectedly from the depths of an ancient lake and spewed ash and rock at three scientific bases manned by Argentines, Chileans and British. The bases were used for weather and oceanographic studies.

Earlier a Chilean helicopter took off 30 Chilean and eight British scientists and military men.

No volcanic eruption had been reported for more than 120 years on the eight-mile-long island 600 miles below the southern tip of South America.

Driving Out People

Another report has just appeared that seems to reinforce the picture of America's large cities as unbearably crime ridden.

In New York City, the police commissioner reports there has been an "abnormal bulge" in crimes of violence so far this year.

There are some factors that show the picture isn't hopeless, but nevertheless, crimes such as murder, felonious assault and robbery (which includes muggings) increased this year in a city already beset by crime.

America has to do something about this problem. So far there has been much talk about a war on crime, but figures from every big city show that crime continues to increase.

This is something that could destroy the cities, and therefore weaken the entire nation.

Already, industry recruiters are finding college students reluctant to take work in or near the largest centers of population. The pay and the opportunities are good, the cultural advantages many.

But young people do not want to go where they or their families will be endangered through attack by individual criminals or in riots. If the lowest members of society in the cities effectively drive out the best contributing members, the whole nation will be thrown out of kilter.

The sad thing is that the nation could drastically cut back on its crime, right now, if it applied available knowledge about crime prevention, rehabilitation and control of criminals.

We know that a good police force is a deterrent to crime, but we continue to keep our police forces undermanned and often fail to get the best young men as policemen.

We know that our courts can deter criminals, or incite individuals to further criminality, but we continue to administer fuzzy, chaotic justice, know that persons should rehabilitate, but we continue to use them as convenient places to hide criminals out of sight.

There must be a willingness to spend more money, in order to build a better system of justice. But money isn't the only thing necessary.

The New York report had several mitigating factors. One was that crime reports are up partly because New Yorkers are less apathetic about crime than formerly.

They're reporting criminal acts now that would have gone unreported a year ago. Public cooperation doesn't cost money, but it comes only when the public has confidence in its police department.

And without the help of the public, the police cannot possibly do their jobs.

DOWN IN A TOWN in Ecuador, a restless manufacturer of foot powder he calls "Pulvapies" mailed out thousands of ballot-like throwaways urging recipients to "vote for Pulvapies." His copywriter did his work all too well. Come Election Day and Pulvapies received more votes than all the actual mayoralty candidates combined.

Mr. A. A. Thomson has an Irish setter named Brigid of whom he is inordinately fond. In fact, he is convinced her powers in following a scent border on the miraculous. For instance, he writes, she once spotted a disreputable looking character loitering on a bench in Hyde Park, and, quivering all over, darted across and perched in front of him in the setting position.

Thomson said, "Good morning, sir. This is my dog Brigid, who has a remarkable nose. You haven't by any chance some game in your coat pocket?" "I certainly have not," cried the character angrily, "and if you don't remove this beastly hound immediately, I'll call a policeman as sure as my name is Algernon Partridge."

Speaking of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

For the past year almost every family magazine that I pick up contains an article on estrogen treatment to prevent "change of life." Is there complete agreement about its use in all cases? Is it safe?

Mrs. L. B. Florida Dear Mrs. B.: Medical articles in magazines and newspapers written by doctors or science writers are never a substitute for the advice of a personal physician. Many generalizations are made in articles for the laity which seem to have the hallmark of authority but lack the personal evaluation by our own doctor.

Estrogen therapy does not prevent the onset of the menopause, or "change of life." Those who are enthusiastic about its use feel that it has many advantages for the comfort of the patient during the normal progression of menopause.

A great many specialists in the problems of women, gynecologists, have used the hormone with outstanding success. They believe that their patients do not show the processes of aging as quickly as do women who do not have the estrogen during this time.

Many scientific studies are being performed all over the country in an effort to substantiate the value and possible disadvantages of sustained doses of estrogen. The level of this hormone is kept up on patients throughout the onset and progress of the "change of life," in carefully selected cases.

There is never complete agreement about the use of this or any other prescription in all cases. The hormone is safe when taken under a doctor's direction for the time he prescribes it.

If there are any unusual side effects, he will immediately stop it. Each case must be evaluated individually.

Your own physician takes into consideration your physical findings and your past background and then after a series of tests may prescribe estrogen for you. Then and only then should you take it and continue to be examined by him at regular intervals.

I have never read an article in your column about multiple sclerosis. Could you write something about it? Is there a cure for it?

Mrs. M.Z., New York Dear Mrs. Z.: Multiple sclerosis is a chronic disease of the central nervous system and involves the spinal cord and the

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — This is one of the strangest moments in American history, a marking-time moment.

To see Congress do a half-baked job, as it has done in 1967, the year before a presidential election year, is not unusual. In the past it could be taken to mean energies were being reserved for what lay ahead.

But more than the upcoming election is on the American mind now and Congress is reflecting a national condition, like holding the breath before making a move, even though this country is up to its neck in war, which is an active thing.

The nation seems to be waiting to see how the Vietnamese war turns out before using its enormous vitality for its chores and its housework. The war is the root of the present condition.

America is pretty well divided into hawks and doves on the war. The hawks at least know what they want, which is to force the North Vietnamese to stop their aggression.

But the doves are a mentally motley crew. Few seem to have any clear idea, thought through, on how to settle the war without creating vast new problems for the United States or the people of Southeast Asia if the United States pulls out or makes fatal concessions in order to get out. Yet, the end is nowhere in sight for hawks or doves, despite the optimistic pronouncements of the Johnson administration. This by itself is baffling for both sides.

But one thing is clear: Their concern with the war—in some cases their obsession with it—diverts their interest and energies from far-reaching and constructive efforts for the problems at home.

Add to them the multitude of people who have no strong feeling about Vietnam either way. They may be ill-informed on how the United States got into the war or puzzled to know how stopping communism in far-off Asia can affect American safety in the future.

They may be vague on the rightness or wrongness of the war, their ideas going perhaps like this: So long as we're in it, we ought to try to win it. Or, we'll have to trust the President to know what he's doing. Or, President Johnson should never have gotten us into it and the best thing is to get out.

But no matter what their thoughts on the conflict, the people are troubled by the war, just as Congress is. And, judging from the way Congress has performed this year, there seems to be an attitude, not necessarily deliberate, of letting pressing things at home wait until the thoughts on the conflict, the people. Another way to say it is that the dilemma of Vietnam is like a sleeping-pill.

As an example, take crime, which is a national scandal and disgrace, getting worse by the month and involving the lives of thousands of innocent, law-abiding citizens.

President Johnson's anticrime program was overridden and rewritten in Congress, to totally scramble that almost certainly nothing will be done about it before next year, if then.

Riots rocked the country last summer and, since nothing has been done to quell them, seem sure to blossom again next summer in a carnival of blood and death.

Johnson set up a Commission on Civil Disorders earlier this year to study the problem and come up with recommendations next year. But it's questionable that Congress, where so many members are primarily concerned with their own re-election, will do much if anything about the commission's proposals.

This picture in other fields could be multiplied many times.

According to Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Wars and politics make up the dusty bones of any people's history.

But to make a people come truly alive you have to know what "turned them on" when they were living flesh—what antie pastimes pleased them, what foolishness they followed, what foibles led them to act as they did.

In an earlier day H. L. Mencken, the Baltimore sage, did much to sustain the view of the rest of the world that the United States is not only the richest but also the nuttiest fruitcake on earth.

His mantle as the chief historian of our national wackiness seems to have fallen on another newspaperman—Paul Sann, executive editor of the New York Post.

A wiry-graying haired man of 53 with impeccable personal culture, Sann has only one character defect, if it can be called a defect—a literary love for oddballs, screwballs, soul savers, genteel scoundrels, and con men of all kinds who brighten the grist of the day's news. He collects them as lesser connoisseurs hoard rare coins, seashells or stamps.

He has put the results of 30 years of research in this field into a 370-page volume entitled "Fads, Follies and Delusions of the American People: A Pictorial Story of Madneses, Crazees and Crowd Phenomena."

If Gen. Charles de Gaulle of France is on your Christmas list, you simply must send a copy to him—but you'll have even more fun reading it yourself.

Sann methodically and merrily traces student manias ranging from goldfish swallowings to panty raids and campus revolts, women's fashions from the Eugenie hat to the miniskirt, popular music from "Yes, We Have No Bananas" to Elvis Presley and the Beatles.

He recalls such idiosyncratic figures of the last half century as Flagpole Kelly, Dr. Francis Townsend, Billy Sunday, Father Divine, and Oom de Omnipotent.

Remember Technocracy, the bunion derbies, hula hoops, the ouija board, chain letters, Dr. Emile Coue, raccoon coats and coonskin caps: Sann tells the story behind the story of how each managed to catch attention—and the cash—of the crowd. It makes for sobering as well as vastly entertaining reading.

Take, for example, the sudden death of film star Rudolph Valentino in 1926, an event which led a crowd of 30,000 hysterical women to storm the funeral parlor where his body was on display.

Was it simply an outburst of mass adoration for a screen idol? Hardly. Sann points out that the associates of Valentino, who died half a million dollars in debt, hired 40 press agents to stir up a crowd reaction. It was so successful, he says, that the reissue of Valentino's films brought in enough money to pay off all debts and leave $700,000 in profit.

Sann, who is also author of a history of the 1920's, "The Lawless Decade," and coauthor of "The Pictorial History of the Wild West," believes that prosperity accounts for the fact that Americans succumb to more gads than other nations.

"We have a lot more money to spend on them," he said. "This is an eternally affluent society. Things go into orbit here because the money's here."

Peace Party Gets Leader

It was in the Carroll Arms restaurant on Capitol Hill in Washington. Senator Eugene McCarthy was in one of his whimsical moods. Hopping from table to table, he announced that he had reservations about supporting a treaty to outlaw war in outer space. "That's the best place for wars to be fought," he said. "There are no people in outer space."

The whimsical McCarthy is deceptive, for, in his polite way, the man cherishes his enemies. Long after other Stevensonians had accommodated themselves to the New Frontier and taken out house leases on the slopes of Camelot, McCarthy still kept his distance from the Kennedys. He lamented that the rejection of Adlai Stevenson had cut the direct connection between the liberalism of the Franklin Roosevelt era and that of the present. Those who have heard him on this subject must wonder about his motives in running on a peace platform against LBJ in the four states of Wisconsin, California, Oregon, and Nebraska. There is no question, of course, about his sincere desire to limit our role in Asia. But it could also be that he is trying to stake out a position for 1972 that would put the remaining Stevensonians, not the Kennedys, in control of Democratic liberalism once Johnson is out of the picture. McCarthy does not seem to me to be any stalking horse for Bobby Kennedy, and it may be significant that he is entering primaries not in the Kennedy-dominated East but in the Middle and Far West, where a Minnesota Democratic Farmer-Labor past never does a liberal any harm.

All whimsical people are likeable, but this does not necessarily mean that we need a whimsical President. The Alice-in-Wonderland flavor of Gene McCarthy's theories about Red China stands logic on its head. The Senator sees no particular menace in the Red Chinese drive to re-establish "predominant influence in Southeast Asia" and to recover the "lost territories" of Hong Kong, Macao, parts of Soviet Asia, Tibet, Taiwan, Quemoy, Matsu, and land along the Sino-Indian frontier. This drive, he says, "is an essentially nationalistic objective, shared by all Chinese." Well, the twelve million Chinese in Taiwan, and a lot of Chinese refugees from the Asiatic mainland who are earning good money in Hong Kong, certainly don't share the "recovery" desires of Mao Tse-tung. Nor do the Thais, the Malaysians, and the Burmese want to become part of a Peking "sphere of influence." The trouble with Gene McCarthy's logic is that it very often takes off from general premises that make no connection with particular reality.

Gene McCarthy is completely off base in his description of what happened in the Korean War. "When American troops crossed the 38th parallel into North Korea," he said, "the Chinese became very apprehensive." The "American drive to the Yalu River appeared to threaten China itself, particularly the industrial heartland of Manchuria." True enough, the Red Chinese didn't want to see Americans on the Yalu. But they had had plenty of assurances, through spy network channels, that General MacArthur would not be allowed to touch the "sanctuary" in the industrial heartland of Manchuria. The Red Chinese went into North Korea precisely because they were not threatened in their homeland by the United Nations forces in South Korea.

Gene McCarthy has said he wants either to get the United Nations to settle the Vietnamese War or to try the Gavin policy of retreat to a few "enclaves." But the UN shows absolutely no disposition to take on the South-east Asian headache. The Soviet bloc in the UN is there to prevent action even if the neutrals wanted to do something. As for the "enclave policy," the fact is that South Vietnam is in itself little more than an enclave. Like Pusan in South Korea, though on a larger scale, the South Vietnam enclave is under constant siege. Ho Chi Minh's men, hiding out in the privileged areas of Cambodia, Laos, and North Vietnam, make incursions into our "fort" almost at will, and we dare not move after them to bring them to any decisive battle.

Gene McCarthy's candidacy represents a mood. It is, no doubt, an honorable mood, but it will be shattered by the stern truth that it takes two compromisers to make a compromise peace. LBJ learned to compromise when he was McCarthy's Majority Leader in the Senate. But Ho Chi Minh never had any parliamentary experience. If he should ever pretend to compromise, hang on to your wallets.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Canada and the United States are vastly different lands, as any Canadian and a few Americans will tell you. Consider the differences in size alone.

Canada in area is much larger than the United States—second only to the Soviet Union, in fact—but it has only 20 million people compared to the 200 million which inhabit the United States.

It has a government budget of less than $10 billion compared with more than $100 billion in the United States.

The gross national product, the total of all goods and services, is between $60 billion and $70 billion in Canada and between $790 billion and $800 billion in the United States.

The national economies, obviously, are very different in size, but beyond that the dissimilarities are far less obvious, the similarities far easier to observe.

Each exports prodigious amounts of goods to the other. Each invests in the other's country. Some industries are jointly owned.

It is this economic closeness that makes the recent fiscal action in Canada of such importance and interest to the United States. Canada has raised taxes; it has promised to cut spending; it is countering inflation.

These, of course, are the very aims that clearly have been frustrated in the United States, although the cause of the frustration is perhaps less clear and is still open to political interpretation.

In an effort to combat rapidly rising prices, costs and interest rates—the same inflationary rashes now pecking the heated American economy—the Canadian government has approved an entire tax package.

Its most important move, or the one at least that effects the most people, is a 5 per cent surtax on personal incomes.

In addition, to this, it has speeded corporate tax payments, boosted the tobacco and alcohol taxes and made provisions for a smaller than expected budget increase for the next fiscal year.

Beyond this, Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp is reported also to be planning meetings with labor, business and other groups to set up temporary and voluntary restraints on inflationary pressures.

Specially, but with some refinements not necessary to mention, the surtax means taxpayers will pay an additional 5 per cent on their basic tax in excess of $100, and up to a maximum of $600 of basic tax.

It means that tobacco and alcohol taxes will go up about 10 per cent, adding a two-cent levy on a pack of cigarettes, about 15 or 20 cents on a bottle of liquor, and about four cents on a six-pack of beer.

This relatively speedy action in Canada can be compared with the frustrations in the United States of both Congress and the administration. Neither can convince the other.

The solution, in the view of most but not all economists, is to take some money out of the economy—slow the economy to a sustainable level of expansion—and with that money pay off the government budget deficit.

Whatever device is used to counter inflation in the United States, it must be taken soon. The present inflation, which is rising, will damage not only the American economy and its position in world affairs, but will also hurt the closely related economy of its Canadian neighbor.

TODAY In History

'Gunsmoke' Rolls On

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For a television series once deemed dead and buried, "Gunsmoke" is showing amazing life.

Earlier this year CBS announced that the veteran Western had run its course and was being put out to pasture. Then the network changed its mind and said the series would come back for its 13th season—on Monday night at 7:30. That seemed to the trade like a death sentence, since the early evening juvenile audience was not likely to take to an adult Western.

"I thought we would lose in the new time slot," admits "Gunsmoke" producer John Mantley. "At 7:30 the children are supposed to control the set. And we were up against The Monkees and Chuck Connors with animals—Cowboy in Africa."

"I was astonished when the first ratings showed us ahead of the other two. I had hoped to start low and then build. Instead, we started high and have climbed. In one recent rating we were No. 6, and no one could have been more surprised than I."

Mantley, asked to analyze the performance, theorized that perhaps the show is now getting the big city audience.

"The pattern of our ratings on Saturday was always the same," he said. "We were seldom in the top 30 of the 30-city Nielsen. But we leaped up in the national ratings. That meant we had a small urban audience, but a large one among suburban and rural viewers."

"That doesn't seem the case on Monday nights. We seem to get city viewers who found it inconvenient to watch Saturday because they were entertaining or going out."

Mantley believes the quality of "Gunsmoke" has never been higher, largely because the shows have been "heavy Matt." He explained that the shows are categorized as "heavy Matt" or "light Matt," depending on the involvement of Jim Arness, who plays Matt Dillon.

The producer is convinced that public outcry caused CBS to rescind its death sentence on "Gunsmoke." He explained, "In many states our show was still No. 1, and several of the affiliated stations in the Midwest were in open revolt."

With "Gunsmoke" riding high once more, couldn't it continue on and on? "It's doubtful," said Mantley. "It already must have the highest cast cost in television, with five principals, three of them on the show for 1 year. All of them except Amanda Blake come up for renewal next year, and I'm sure Jim will want a lot of money to continue."

Solons Demand Beauty Shop

WASHINGTON (AP)—"We've got to have a beauty shop," said House Speaker John W. McCormack. "Without it there would be a revolution."

The House—or at least its women members, congressional secretaries and other women employees—has been without the services of trained beauticians since Mabel Solomon, operator of the House beauty parlor for 31 years, retired six months ago because of ill health. Since then there has been a squabble over succession rights to the shop.

Saturday night Mrs. Solomon had five truck loads of beauty equipment hauled out of the basement shop in the Longworth Office Building.

As one result, while there may not be a revolution there will be a resolution. To be submitted to the House by Rep. Martha Griffiths, D-Mich., it will ask for official authorization of a special committee to draft a managerial contract for the shop and to buy new equipment.

Driving Out People

Another report has just appeared that seems to reinforce the picture of America's large cities as unbearably crime ridden.

In New York City, the police commissioner reports there has been an "abnormal bulge" in crimes of violence so far this year.

There are some factors that show the picture isn't hopeless, but nevertheless, crimes such as murder, felonious assault and robbery (which includes muggings) increased this year in a city already beset by crime.

America has to do something about this problem. So far there has been much talk about a war on crime, but figures from every big city show that crime continues to increase.

This is something that could destroy the cities, and therefore weaken the entire nation.

Already, industry recruiters are finding college students reluctant to take work in or near the largest centers of population. The pay and the opportunities are good, the cultural advantages many.

But young people do not want to go where they or their families will be endangered through attack by individual criminals or in riots. If the lowest members of society in the cities effectively drive out the best contributing members, the whole nation will be thrown out of kilter.

The sad thing is that the nation could drastically cut back on its crime, right now, if it applied available knowledge about crime prevention, rehabilitation and control of criminals.

We know that a good police force is a deterrent to crime, but we continue to keep our police forces undermanned and often fail to get the best young men as policemen.

We know that our courts can deter criminals, or incite individuals to further criminality, but we continue to administer fuzzy, chaotic justice, know that persons should rehabilitate, but we continue to use them as convenient places to hide criminals out of sight.

There must be a willingness to spend more money, in order to build a better system of justice. But money isn't the only thing necessary.

The New York report had several mitigating factors. One was that crime reports are up partly because New Yorkers are less apathetic about crime than formerly.

They're reporting criminal acts now that would have gone unreported a year ago. Public cooperation doesn't cost money, but it comes only when the public has confidence in its police department.

And without the help of the public, the police cannot possibly do their jobs.

Mr. A. A. Thomson has an Irish setter named Brigid of whom he is inordinately fond. In fact, he is convinced her powers in following a scent border on the miraculous. For instance, he writes, she once spotted a disreputable-looking character loitering on a bench in Hyde Park, and, quivering all over, darted across and perched in front of him in the setting position.

Thomson said, "Good morning, sir. This is my dog Brigid, who has a remarkable nose. You haven't by any chance some game in your coat pocket?" "I certainly have not," cried the character angrily, "and if you don't remove this beastly hound immediately, I'll call a policeman as sure as my name is Algernon Partridge."

Speaking of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

For the past year almost every family magazine that I pick up contains an article on estrogen treatment to prevent "change of life." Is there complete agreement about its use in all cases? Is it safe?

Mrs. L. B. Florida Dear Mrs. B.: Medical articles in magazines and news papers written by doctors or science writers are never a substitute for the advice of a personal physician. Many generalizations are made in articles for the laity which seem to have the hallmark of authority but lack the personal evaluation by our own doctor.

Estrogen therapy does not prevent the onset of the menopause, or "change of life." Those who are enthusiastic about its use feel that it has many advantages for the comfort of the patient during the normal progression of menopause.

A great many specialists in the problems of women, gynecologists, have used the hormone with outstanding success. They believe that their patients do not show the processes of aging as quickly as do women who do not have the estrogen during this time.

Many scientific studies are being performed all over the country in an effort to substantiate the value and possible disadvantages of sustained doses of estrogen. The level of this hormone is kept up on patients throughout the onset and progress of the "change of life," in carefully selected cases.

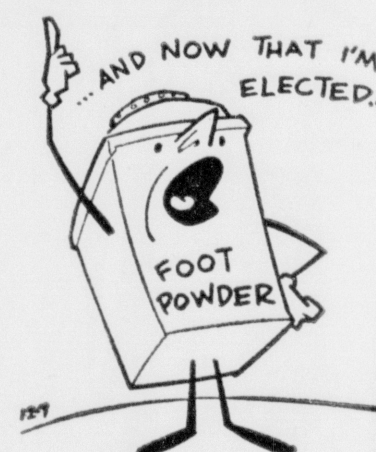

There is never complete agreement about the use of this or any other prescription in all cases. The hormone is safe when taken under a doctor's direction for the time he prescribes it.

If there are any unusual side-effects, he will immediately stop it. Each case must be evaluated individually.

Your own physician takes into consideration your physical findings and your past background and then after a series of tests may prescribe estrogen for you. Then and only then should you take it and continue to be examined by him at regular intervals.

I have never read an article in your column about multiple sclerosis. Could you write something about it? Is there a cure for it?

Mrs. M.Z. New York Dear Mrs. Z.: Multiple sclerosis is a chronic disease of the central nervous system and involves the spinal cord and the brain. Many readers would be unnecessarily frightened if I were to enumerate the different organs involved. The diagnosis is suspected by the clinical picture and verified by the neurologist.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — This is one of the strangest moments in American history, a marking-time moment.

To see Congress do a half-baked job, as it has done in 1967, the year before a presidential election year, is not unusual. In the past it could be taken to mean energies were being reserved for what lay ahead.

But more than the upcoming election is on the American mind now and Congress is reflecting a national condition, like holding the breath before making a move, even though this country is up to its neck in war, which is an active thing.

The nation seems to be waiting to see how the Vietnamese war turns out before using its enormous vitality for its shores and its household. The war is the root of the present condition.

America is pretty well divided into hawks and doves on the war. The hawks at least know what they want, which is to force the North Vietnamese to stop their aggression.

But the doves are a mentally molten crew. Few seem to have any clear idea, thought through, on how to settle the war without creating vast new problems for the United States or the people of Southeast Asia if the United States pulls out or makes fatal concessions in order to get out. Yet, the end is nowhere in sight for hawks or doves, despite the optimistic pronouncements of the Johnson administration. This by itself is baffling for both sides.

But one thing is clear: Their concern with the war—in some cases their obsession with it—diverts their interest and energies from far-reaching and constructive efforts for the problems at home.

Add to them the multitude of people who have no strong feeling about Vietnam either way. They may be ill-informed on how the United States got into the war or puzzled to know how stopping communism in far-off Asia can affect American safety in the future.

They may be vague on the rightness or wrongness of the war, their ideas going perhaps like this: So long as we're in it, we ought to try to win it. Or, we'll have to trust the President to know what he's doing. Or, President Johnson should never have gotten us into it and the best thing is to get out.

But no matter what their thoughts on the conflict, the people are troubled by the war, just as Congress is. And, judging from the way Congress has performed this year, there seems to be an attitude, not necessarily deliberate, of letting pressing things at home wait until the thoughts on the conflict, the people. Another way to say it is that the dilemma of Vietnam is like a sleeping pill.

As an example, take crime, which is a national scandal and disgrace, getting worse by the month and involving the lives of thousands of innocent, law-abiding citizens.

President Johnson's anticrime program was overridden and rewritten in Congress, to totally scramble that almost certainly nothing will be done about it before next year, if then.

Riots rocked the country last summer and, since nothing has been done to quell them, seem sure to blossom again next summer in a carnival of blood and death.

Johnson set up a Commission on Civil Disorders earlier this year to study the problem and come up with recommendations next year. But it's questionable that Congress, where so many members are primarily concerned with their own re-election, will do much if anything about the commission's proposals.

This picture in other fields could be multiplied many times.

According to Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Wars and politics make up the dusty bones of any people's history.

But to make a people come truly alive you have to know what "turned them on" when they were living flesh—what antics pastimes pleased them, what foolishness they followed, what foibles led them to act as they did.

In an earlier day H. L. Mencken, the Baltimore sage, did much to sustain the view of the rest of the world that the United States is not only the richest but also the nuttiest fruitcake on earth.

His mantle as the chief historian of our national wackiness seems to have fallen on another newspaperman—Paul Sann, executive editor of the New York Post.

A wiry, graying haired man of 53 with impeccable personal culture, Sann has only one character defect, if it can be called a defect—a literary love for oddballs, screwballs, soul savers, genteel scallawags, and con men of all kinds who brighten the grist of the day's news. He collects them as lesser connoisseurs hoard rare coins, seashells or stamps.

He has put the results of 30 years of research in this field into a 370-page volume entitled "Fads, Follies and Delusions of the American People: A Pictorial Story of Madmen, Madwomen and Crowd Phenomena."

If Gen. Charles de Gaulle of France is on your Christmas list, you simply must send a copy to him—but you'll have even more fun reading it yourself.

Sann methodically and merrily traces student manias ranging from goldfish swallowings to panty raids and campus revolts, women's fashions from the Eugenie hat to the miniskirt, popular music from "Yes, We Have No Bananas" to Elvis Presley and the Beatles.

He recalls such idiosyncratic figures of the last half century as Flapole Kelly, Dr. Francis Townsend, Billy Sunday, Father Divine, and Oom the Omnipotent.

Remember Technocracy, the bunion derbies, hula hoops, the ouija board, chain letters, Dr. Emile Coue, raccoon coats and coonskin caps: Sann tells the story behind the story of how each managed to catch attention—and the cash—of the crowd. It makes for sobering as well as vastly entertaining reading.

Take, for example, the sudden death of film star Rudolph Valentino in 1926, an event which led a crowd of 30,000 hysterical women to storm the funeral parlor where his body was on display.

Was it simply an outburst of mass adoration for a screen idol? Hardly. Sann points out that the associates of Valentino, who died half a million dollars in debt, hired 40 press agents to stir up a crowd reaction. It was so successful, he says, that the reissue of Valentino's films brought in enough money to pay off all debts and leave $700,000 in profit.

Sann, who is also author of a history of the 1920's, "The Lawless Decade," and coauthor of "The Pictorial History of the Wild West," believes that prosperity accounts for the fact that Americans succumb to more gads than other nations.

"We have a lot more money to spend on them," he said. "This is an eternally affluent society. Things go into orbit here because the money's here."

Peace Party Gets Leader

It was in the Carroll Arms restaurant on Capitol Hill in Washington. Senator Eugene McCarthy was in one of his whimsical moods. Hopping from table to table, he announced that he had reservations about supporting a treaty to outlaw war in outer space. "That's the best place for wars to be fought," he said. "There are no people in outer space."

The whimsical McCarthy is deceptive, for, in his polite way, the man cherishes his enemies. Long after other Stevensonians had accommodated themselves to the New Frontier and taken out house leases on the slopes of Camelot, McCarthy still kept his distance from the Kennedys. He lamented that the rejection of Adlai Stevenson had cut the direct connection between the liberalism of the Franklin Roosevelt era and that of the present. Those who have heard him on this subject must wonder about his motives in running on a peace platform against LBJ in the four states of Wisconsin, California, Oregon, and Nebraska. There is no question, of course, about his sincere desire to limit our role in Asia. But it could also be that he is trying to stake out a position for 1972 that would put the remaining Stevensonians, not the Kennedys, in control of Democratic liberalism once Johnson is out of the picture. McCarthy does not seem to me to be any stalking horse for Bobby Kennedy, and it may be significant that he is entering primaries not in the Kennedy-dominated East but in the Middle and Far West, where a Minnesota Democratic Farmer-Labor past never does a liberal any harm.

All whimsical people are likeable, but this does not necessarily mean that we need a whimsical President. The Alcein-Wonderland flavor of Gene McCarthy's theories about Red China stands logic on its head. The Senator sees no particular menace in the Red Chinese drive to re-establish "predominant influence in Southeast Asia" and to recover the "lost territories" of Hong Kong, Macao, parts of Soviet Asia, Tibet, Taiwan, Quemoy, Matsu, and land along the Sino-Indian frontier. This drive, he says, "is an essentially nationalistic objective, shared by all Chinese." Well, the twelve million Chinese in Taiwan, and a lot of Chinese refugees from the Asiatic mainland who are earning good money in Hong Kong, certainly don't share the "recovery" desires of Mao Tse-tung. Nor do the Thais, the Malaysians, and the Burmese want to become part of a Peking "sphere of influence." The trouble with Gene McCarthy's logic is that it very often takes off from general premises that make no connection with particular reality.

Gene McCarthy is completely off base in his description of what happened in the Korean War. "When American troops crossed the 38th parallel into North Korea," he said, "the Chinese became very apprehensive." The "American drive to the Yalu River appeared to threaten China itself, particularly the industrial heartland of Manchuria." True enough, the Red Chinese didn't want to see Americans on the Yalu. But they had had plenty of assurances, through spy network channels, that General MacArthur would not be allowed to touch the "sanctuary" in the industrial heartland of Manchuria. The Red Chinese went into North Korea precisely because they were not threatened in their homeland by the United Nations forces in South Korea.

Gene McCarthy has said he wants either to get the United Nations to settle the Vietnamese War or to try the Gavin policy of retreat to a few "enclaves." But the UN shows absolutely no disposition to take on the South-east Asian headache. The Soviet bloc in the UN is there to prevent action even if the neutrals wanted to do something. As for the "enclave policy," the fact is that South Vietnam is in itself little more than an enclave. Like Pusan in South Korea, though on a larger scale, the South Vietnam enclave is under constant siege. Ho Chi Minh's men, hiding out in the privileged areas of Cambodia, Laos, and North Vietnam, make incursions into our "fort" almost at will, and we dare not move after them to bring them to any decisive battle.

Gene McCarthy's candidacy represents a mood. It is, no doubt, an honorable mood, but it will be shattered by the stern truth that it takes two compromises to make a compromise peace. Whatever device is used to counter inflation in the United States, it must be taken soon. The present inflation, which is rising, will damage not only the American economy and its position in world affairs, but will also hurt the closely related economy of its Canadian neighbor.

With "Gunsmoke" riding high once more, couldn't it continue on and on? "It's doubtful," said Mantley. "It already must have the highest cast cost in television, with five principals, three of them on the show for 1 year. All of them except Amanda Blake come up for renewal next year, and I'm sure Jim will want a lot of money to continue."

Girl Scouts Spend Weekend at Camp

WINTER CAMPERS — Pictured are members of Girl Scout Troop 778, whose projects earned a weekend of winter camping at Camp Ken-Jockey.

The Junior Girl Scout Troop 778 recently spent a weekend of winter camping in Trumbull Lodge at Camp Ken-Jockey.

This was the climax of a year's preparation by the 28 girls who made the trip. Through their efforts in the recent cookie sale, prize money won at fairs and money saved from their dues, these Scouts saved enough money to completely pay for their trip.

At camp they participated in a Flag Ceremony, hike, Scout's Own, first-aid lessons and a square dance.

Highlight of the weekend was

Guild 28 Holds Annual Christmas Party

The home of Mrs. Ned Harden, 146 Park Place, was decorated throughout in the Christmas theme for the recent Christmas party of Berger Hospital Guild 28.

A short business session was held with Mrs. William Cox, chairman, presiding. Reports were given by Mrs. Vera Downs and Mrs. Vaughn Hill.

Members agreed not to meet in January and to hold an auction during the February meeting.

Refreshments and a social hour followed a gift exchange.

Present were Mrs. Clarence Ater, Mrs. William Cox, Mrs. Orren Stout, Mrs. Vaughn Hill, Mrs. Edith Vlerbome, Mrs. C. R. Barnhart, Mrs. Howard Smith, Mrs. J. E. Chester, Mrs. Louis Carter, Mrs. Ethel Palsgrove, Mrs. Vera Downs, Mrs. William Defenbaugh, and Mrs. L.E. Foreman, assistant hostess.

Five Points WCTU Annual Party Slated

Five Points WCTU will meet 2 p.m. Wednesday, in the home of Mrs. Loring Stoer, for its annual Christmas party and gift exchange.

All members are urged to attend.

Tarlton Church Class Meets In Social Room

Truth Seekers Class of the Tarlton Methodist Church met in the church social room Monday evening with Mrs. Melvin Hunt, vice president presiding.

The group sang Christmas songs and the Rev. Donald Cummings read the Christmas Story from the book of Luke.

Plans were made for boxes of fruit to be distributed at Christmas time. The group agreed to purchase a Christmas poinsettia for the sanctuary.

Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Russell Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rhymmer will be hosts for the Christmas meeting. At this time a gift exchange will be held and secret pals revealed.

Sixty-Fourth Anniversary To Be Observed

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Barringer of Tarlton will observe their sixty-fourth wedding anniversary on Sunday. They will be honored with a family dinner at noon in the Tarlton Community Hall. Open house will be observed from 2 - 4 p.m. at the Hall. All friends and relatives are invited and the honored guests request that there be no presents.

Alva Barringer and Bessie Snider were married Dec. 24, 1903, at the Lutheran parsonage in Lithopolis. They are the parents of 15 children, 11 of whom are living. Lawrence lives in California and Mabel in Fort Meyers, Fla., and the others live in this area.

Mr. Barringer has been a carpenter, and recently completed his fortieth grandfather's clock, which he sold to Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Stern of Lancaster. The couple lived in Hocking County for 25 years and have lived the past 20 years in Tarlton.

How the Weather Looks

OHIO WEATHER SUMMARY
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Official Weather Bureau summary for Ohio:

Rain, drizzle and fog blanketed Ohio Wednesday and continued this morning. Precipitation amounted to only a few hundredths of an inch. Temperatures overnight were in the 40s and 50s.

A pleasant day was forecast for southwest Ohio today, with sunshine likely and temperatures in the 60s. But the rest of the state was to remain cloudy with occasional rain. Highs were expected to range from around 50 in the north and east to the 60s southwest.

Colder air will begin moving into the state tonight and rain snow or flurries over the north and east tonight and Friday. Only partly cloudy skies appear likely for the southwest. Lows tonight are forecast in the 30s.

FORECASTS

OHIO — Turning colder tonight with rain changing to light snow or flurries north and east by Friday morning. Low tonight in 30s and low 40s. Snow flurries northeast. Partly cloudy southwest Friday and colder.

CENTRAL OHIO — Turning colder tonight with rain possible mixed with a few snow flurries late tonight. Low tonight in the mid 30s. Friday variable cloudiness and colder.

SOUTHEAST OHIO — Cloudy and mild with occasional light rain tonight. Turning colder by Friday morning. Low tonight in the upper 30s. Friday variable cloudiness and colder with chance of a few snow flurries.

SOUTHWEST OHIO — Partly cloudy with showers ending and colder tonight, low in the 30s. Partly cloudy and colder Friday.

NORTHWEST OHIO — Rain changing to snow flurries tonight and turning colder, low in 30s. Mostly cloudy and colder Friday.

To use slices of leftover roast beef, spread them with prepared mustard and coat with fine dry bread crumbs. Fry the breaded slices in hot butter, browning on both sides. Serve with horseradish.

Howe Raps Segregation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harold Howe II, U.S. commissioner of education, says of segregated schools that "the danger we run is becoming a South Africa without really knowing it and without admitting it to ourselves."

South Africa officially observes a rigid policy of apartheid, or separation of the races.

"I don't think the primary reason to have Negroes and whites go to school together is to learn reading, writing and arithmetic—it's so we have one society instead of two," Howe said in an interview.

He said integration promotes racial harmony because "mutual suspicion among human beings disappears when they get to know each other."

He also said of integration: "Over a period of time I think it is going to help the learning out of youngsters from poor families—both Negroes and whites."

Howe's comments came shortly after two studies concluded Negro children bused to middleclass schools did not achieve more scholastically.

Civil rights leaders, at a recent Washington conference, showed more enthusiasm for improving segregated Negro schools than for integration.

Howe said he agreed with the aim of better education for Negro pupils. "And yet I say that unless you keep vigorously pressing on the problem of segregation at the same time, you give people a way of crossing segregation off their consciences."

The commissioner said it will take years to bring about substantial integration, especially in Northern cities, and that he understands the discouragement of civil rights leaders.

Famed Fountain Dispenses Booze

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The soda fountain in Shirley Temple's childhood home "now dispenses scotch and bourbon," according to the auctioneer who sold it.

The two-story, rambling English manor house, reportedly purchased with the proceeds of the motion picture "The Good Ship Lollipop," was sold Tuesday for $154,000 to Christopher Cord, grandson of the maker of the Cord automobile.

Auctioneer Milton J. Wershow said the soda fountain built in the house for the curly-haired movie moppet is now used as a cocktail bar. The house also contains a full-size bowling alley.

The home was sold to Harry Fitterman two years ago by the former child star, now Mrs. Shirley Temple Black, a Woodside, Calif. matron defeated last month in a bid for a seat in Congress.

SANTA and the PIGWIDGEN

By LUCRECE BEALE

Synopsis: Tweedleknecs says he will go with Claus to find the Pigwidgen. He says the elves who are also under a curse will give them special weapons.

CHAPTER SIX FOUR GIFTS

THE SOPHOPPY River cascaded through dark and fearful channels far beneath the earth. Claus lay flat on his stomach and clutched the sides of the matchstick raft.

The gushing waters surged around him and he thought every minute would surely be his last. But Patrick Tweedleknecs, with only firefly flashlight to see by, calmly poked the raft through the rolling flood with a long-handled broom.

At last the waters calmed and Claus dared to open his eyes. He saw a blue-lighted cavern ahead. The river flowed gently into the cave and Tweedleknecs, leaping ashore, said, "This is Elfland."

Claus staggered off the raft. He was greeted by hundreds of elves. They shouted, "It's a giant! Tweedleknecs has brought a giant!"

Tweedleknecs explained crossly that Claus was not a giant but a perfectly ordinary man who meant to destroy the Pigwidgen who had cursed all the children and elves of the land.

The elves gazed at Claus in awe.

"How brave he is!" they murmured. "How strong!"

"And I," said Tweedleknecs jealously, "I am going to help him."

"We'll all help," shouted the elves. "We'll give you the weapons to slay the Pigwidgen!"

They rushed off to the workbenches that filled the cavern. They set to work hammering and sawing and bolting and whittling and, all the time, singing at the top of their squeaky lungs.

"What are they making?" shouted Claus above the din.

"Who knows?" replied Tweedleknecs. "Elves can make anything."

"I like to make toys," said Claus modestly.

"Elves make toys, too. In fact, it's their favorite thing," Tweedleknecs showed Claus to a huge storeroom filled with tricycles and hobby horses and wagons and dolls and fire engines and a hundred other toys.

"Use the magic with great care," urged the old elf.

"What do you do with them?" cried Claus admiringly.

Tweedleknecs shrugged. "Store them here. It's a hobby. It keeps us busy."

"But think how children would enjoy them!" said Claus.

"Children are everywhere," reminded Tweedleknecs. "Elves are here and cannot leave."

A gray-haired, spectacled elf tugged at Claus' sleeve. "We're finished now," he said. "See what we have made."

Therelves gathered around and the old elf gave Claus four wondrous gifts.

First, a bow and an arrow which would always find its mark.

Second, a ring. When twisted three times it would cause a creature to change its shape.

Third, a mouthharp, the sound of which could charm the fiercest foe.

And finally, a dagger whose point had been dipped in a deadly poison.

Claus' heart pounded with excitement. With such weapons as these he could surely destroy the wicked Pigwidgen.

But the old elf warned, "There's one thing you must remember. The magic of each gift will work but once. Therefore use with care."

In a South African hospital bed this week, a 55-year-old grocer lived with the heart of a young woman beating in his breast. He hoped this strange heart would fool his body into believing it was his own.

Louis Washkansky existed with what can be described as a benevolent but vital infection. On this pivot his life turned.

His heart was that of 25-year-old Denise Ann Darvall, struck by an automobile and fatally injured.

Her heart was well, but she was dead. The heart of Washkansky was dying, but the rest of his body was well. Doctors in a five-hour operation transplanted her heart into Washkansky's body.

Three days later, on Wednesday, doctors attempted the operation at Maimonides Hospital in Brooklyn, transplanting the heart from a dead baby into the breast of a 2½-week-old boy. The patient lived only 6½ hours.

"We do not know at this time why this transplanted heart failed," said Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz, the chief surgeon.

Asked if he and his medical team are going to try again, he said: "We certainly are."

Despite the infant's death, the fact remains that in the case of Washkansky, 20th century medicine has brought mankind to this point: A transplant has been effected, and the patient lies in a Cape Town bed hoping his body will not recognize that his new heart is a foreign organ. Human bodies are not easy to fool.

Washkansky's body has spent 55 years, from the time it was a microscopic union of two cells, learning what was its own and what was not. To this genetic understanding, it owed its survival. As it was beset by virus and bacteria, or even such small things as wooden splinters, it dealt with them on one basis: They did not belong; they must be disposed of.

The body is a complex system with many weapons for self-defense. It produces antibodies—tiny, carefully designed bits of protein that can pursue and capture and neutralize the protein-coated viruses that threaten health. It produces certain white blood cells to chase down and dissolve bacteria and other body invaders. These cells have still other means of producing immunity to disease, mysterious means that science has not been able to pinpoint.

These weapons that protect a person from his microscopic enemies also trouble him. Antibodies are produced against even harmless invaders, and sometimes the antibodies sensitize a person to harmless common elements—pollen, dust, the hair of a dog. So it is with transplanted organs—kidneys, spleens, lungs and hearts. This danger follows all transplants.

Doctors now use powerful drugs and radiation to suppress the body's immunity mechanism and forestall rapid rejection of new organs. But this leaves the patient vulnerable to infection, and he must be protected by antibiotics and sterile procedures.

So Louis Washkansky lived his first days under the eye of doctors and nurses alert for signs of rejection. As a guard

Student Wants Some U.S. Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — "With much pleasure to call your attention to it that I have seen your bag from one of my friends. And moreover I am interesting in it," the letter began.

"So you should kindly send me one. I am great need of it. I am a school boy of 11 year old and reading form one and I am haven about 13 books and have no where to put them in."

Officials of the U.S. Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management, who received the letter recently, say they sent a bright yellow plastic litter bag to young Denquah Kofi in Kad-jeb-Akan, Ghana.

"Join BLM operation clean up," it says on the bag.

"While our supply is low just now," a bureau spokesman said, "I'm sure we can find a few bags for someone as resourceful as Danquah." Danquah's letter didn't say where his friend got the litter bag.

against infection he lived in an oxygen tent.

His operation was the world's first transplant of a human heart. In past years, doctors have transplanted 600 kidneys from one person to another, and a number of lungs and spleens. They have transplanted dog hearts with some success, but never a human heart, although they came close at least once.

In 1964, University of Mississippi surgeons held on to the failing life of a patient in hopes that they could find a suitable donor, a person who was dying but whose heart was undamaged.

The heart of their patient—a big man who was never identified—was fading fast. At the end, they decided to try a small chimpanzee's heart to at least temporarily sustain life. The heart was put in place and shocked into beating. It worked for about an hour, then failed.

Since that time, work with animals and the increasing use of transplanted kidneys have given surgeons a much broader experience. It also has raised more and more questions about the ethics of transplants.

"Wait," say some doctors. "Wait for the development of artificial hearts, hearts that work on electricity and can be implanted in the body without fear of rejection, and without question as to where and how the replacement heart was obtained."

"Grandstanding," say other doctors, contending that the proper aim should be to prevent heart trouble, not engage in risky operations to replace sick hearts.

But transplants will continue. They reflect the frustration of the doctor with a patient 99 per cent healthy, yet dying for want

Bow Refuses To OK Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Frank T. Bow, R-Ohio, refused Wednesday to sign an agreement between House and Senate conferences on a compromise plan to cut government spending this year by $4.1 billion.

Bow, who said he would try to substitute a requirement to hold federal spending this year to $134.6 billion, wants to enlarge the cut to about $5.7 billion.

of one vital part. In Washkansky's case, said the South African doctors, the surgery was "his only chance." He would have lived only a few more days at the most.

At Stanford Medical Center, where doctors have been waiting months for the right circumstances to transplant a heart, Dr. Norman Shumway put it this way:

"It has to be an extreme case, a terminal case, because legally you are killing a person when you take this heart out and throw it away. At the moment he goes into the operating room, he's alive. You have to assume he would be dead without the transplant in a few weeks or months."

What of the donor? Doctors must be certain this life is beyond recall. In South Africa, surgeons watched the electrical activity of the brain of Denise Darvall as it failed. To them, it was the signature of death.

Then they had to work fast, to remove her heart, and fasten it into place in the grocer, his own heart removed. In the critical moments of the operation, Washkansky was fed refreshed blood by a heartlung machine. In five hours it was done, and Washkansky rested, his immunity mechanism deadened by drugs and his body protected by antibiotics. His new heart pumped well and strong. His blood pressure was up, and his blood was guarded by still more drugs against the possibility of clots.

Louis Washkansky's future, after the first critical days, was still a question. Said one South African doctor, "The body could decide in five to ten years time that it doesn't want this heart."

And his living left questions for society to answer: Where will it end? Who shall judge the conditions for transplanting Who will safeguard the donor's rights? What if someone important—perhaps a prime minister —were dying and needed a new heart? Who could be certain that a healthy heart was not taken prematurely? And what if two patients were dying and only one heart was available?

The artificial heart may be the only answer, but it is perhaps 10 years away.

Ashville News Report

Mrs. John Sabine — 983-7831

The Past Chiefs Club of the Pythian Sisters met in the home of Edith Hudson Thursday evening with nineteen members and one guest present.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Charlotte Rife. Minutes of the previous meeting and the treasurer's report were given by Dorothy Cook. The annual Christmas Party will be held Dec. 28 in the home of Mona Morrison. A carry-in dinner will be served at 6:30 p. m. followed by a gift exchange.

Following the meeting games were played with first prize being awarded to Charlotte Rife. The door prize was won by Lenna Musselman.

Mrs. Hudson, assisted by Mildred Kuhn, Georgia Hoover and Fannie Miller served a delicious dessert course to Virginia Boyer, Evelyn Morrison, Mae Borror, Mary Helen Miller, Helen Kuhlwein, Florence Wharton, Winnie Morrison, Carolyn Peters, Dorothy Cook, Francine Peters, Lenna Musselman, Marilyn Sabine, Charlotte Rife, Mona Morrison, Madge Baum and Candy Miller. Billie Campbell also served on the committee but was unable to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Lanman, Jr. of Grove City were hosts in their home Sunday for a family dinner, which honored their son, Jim, who recently enlisted in U. S. Navy. Jim will take his first training at the Great Lake Center.

Those attending the dinner were Mrs. Gertrude Lanman, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Smith of South Bloomfield, Mr. and Mrs. Nolan Smith, Bob Dick, Pam and Vickie of Ashville, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Young and Mr. and Mrs. William Walker and David all of Circleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester McCain are vacationing in Kissimmee, Florida.

The WSCS of the Methodist Church will meet Wednesday December 13. A Christmas program will be presented at that time.

The Ashville Community Club and the Ashville Women's Civic Club will be sponsoring the annual Home Decorating Contest for the residents of the village of Ashville. A new category for the best over-all decorated church in the community has been added this year. This will be sponsored by the Ashville Kiwanis Club. Heart Transplant Made in U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—WCBS reported today that the second human heart transplant operation in history took place today at Brooklyn's Maimonides Hospital.

A hospital spokesman would neither confirm nor deny the report, but said a hospital statement would be made at 6:30 p.m. today.

The report came four days after South African surgeons replaced the sick heart of Louis Washkansky, a 55-year-old grocer, with the well heart of a 25-year-old woman who had died.

The United States population reached 200 million at about 11 a. m. Nov. 20, 1967.

Baltimore Schools Condemned by NEA

By DAN DONAUE
Associated Press Writer

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—The National Education Association has condemned Baltimore's public schools. Deficient, neglected and dilapidated are among the words of censure.

Though smarting from the slap, Baltimore which nurtured Edgar Allan Poe, Ogden Nash and H. L. Mencken is striking back with a campaign of its own to show "the progress and the quality of our school system."

An investigative team, said the NEA's Executive Committee, found "teachers underpaid, buildings under-equipped, schools understaffed and the school system underfinanced."

The NEA also said: "De jure segregation has been replaced by de facto segregation in the Baltimore schools, and the painful process of re-segregation has begun."

"Baltimore's fiscal authorities have consistently slashed budget requests and the cumulative effect of their short-sighted actions has caused severe problems."

—More than 90 per cent of the 4,600 children attending four-hour double shifts are Negroes, and 26 of the 30 elementary schools with no libraries are Negro.

And so it launched, at its convention in Miami last summer, the national campaign to persuade business and industry, teachers and parents, that Baltimore is guilty of "tragic neglect of children in the inner city schools."

The Public School Teachers Association, NEA's local affiliate which sought the action, blamed election-year politics for the city's cutting $5.1 million

Loyola Loses Game, 1,013-730

PARKVILLE, Md. (AP)—Loyola College finished the football game with enthusiasm even though they trailed by more than 280 points in the final minutes. That's right—280 points.

It was a marathon football contest for charity won by Towson State 1,013,730.

The game lasted 74 hours. Proceeds from contributions by spectators will go to Santa Claus Anonymous, a charity organization for needy children.

from a $139.5-million school budget.

City and school officials accused the teacher association of acting out of spite after losing a representative election to the rival Baltimore Teachers Union.

The NEA said it was invoking only partial sanctions. It did not censure the school board of government, or urge teachers to boycott classes, as it had previously in Florida.

Reaction was immediate. "We ought not to stand idly by and let this smear take place," said Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin, a Republican noted for his liberal views and rapport with minority groups. McKeldin left office Dec. 5.

"We feel the action taken is totally unwarranted," said Dr. Thomas Goedeke, acting superintendent of schools.

"The poor in Baltimore are overwhelmingly Negro, and the affluent in Baltimore are overwhelmingly white," said the NEA report.

"It is difficult to justify the expenditure for the number of football stadiums and swimming pools for the senior high schools in white neighborhoods, while children in the slum areas attend school in firetraps.

"The poor are not poor out of choice. Negroes did not create the ghetto."

"These people have been victims of the kind of system which, as George Bernard Shaw said, forces a man to be a boot-black and then points to his occupation as proof of his inferiority."

Goedeke said three schools built in 1962, six in 1963, five in 1964 and six in 1965 were inner city schools.

Heart Transplant Made in U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—WCBS reported today that the second human heart transplant operation in history took place today at Brooklyn's Maimonides Hospital.

A hospital spokesman would neither confirm nor deny the report, but said a hospital statement would be made at 6:30 p.m. today.

The report came four days after South African surgeons replaced the sick heart of Louis Washkansky, a 55-year-old grocer, with the well heart of a 25-year-old woman who had died.

The United States population reached 200 million at about 11 a. m. Nov. 20, 1967.

Baltimore Schools Condemned by NEA

By DAN DONAUE
Associated Press Writer

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—The National Education Association has condemned Baltimore's public schools. Deficient, neglected and dilapidated are among the words of censure.

Though smarting from the slap, Baltimore which nurtured Edgar Allan Poe, Ogden Nash and H. L. Mencken is striking back with a campaign of its own to show "the progress and the quality of our school system."

An investigative team, said the NEA's Executive Committee, found "teachers underpaid, buildings under-equipped, schools understaffed and the school system underfinanced."

The NEA also said: "De jure segregation has been replaced by de facto segregation in the Baltimore schools, and the painful process of re-segregation has begun."

"Baltimore's fiscal authorities have consistently slashed budget requests and the cumulative effect of their short-sighted actions has caused severe problems."

—More than 90 per cent of the 4,600 children attending four-hour double shifts are Negroes, and 26 of the 30 elementary schools with no libraries are Negro.

And so it launched, at its convention in Miami last summer, the national campaign to persuade business and industry, teachers and parents, that Baltimore is guilty of "tragic neglect of children in the inner city schools."

The Public School Teachers Association, NEA's local affiliate which sought the action, blamed election-year politics for the city's cutting $5.1 million

Loyola Loses Game, 1,013-730

PARKVILLE, Md. (AP)—Loyola College finished the football game with enthusiasm even though they trailed by more than 280 points in the final minutes. That's right—280 points.

It was a marathon football contest for charity won by Towson State 1,013,730.

The game lasted 74 hours. Proceeds from contributions by spectators will go to Santa Claus Anonymous, a charity organization for needy children.

from a $139.5-million school budget.

City and school officials accused the teacher association of acting out of spite after losing a representative election to the rival Baltimore Teachers Union.

The NEA said it was invoking only partial sanctions. It did not censure the head of government, or urge teachers to boycott classes, as it had previously in Florida.

Reaction was immediate. "We ought not to stand idly by and let this smear take place," said Mayor Theodore R. Mc-

Keldin, a Republican noted for his liberal views and rapport with minority groups. McKeldin left office Dec. 5.

"We feel the action taken is totally unwarranted," said Dr. Thomas Goedeke, acting superintendent of schools.

"The poor in Baltimore are overwhelmingly Negro, and the affluent in Baltimore are overwhelmingly white," said the NEA report.

"It is difficult to justify the expenditure for the number of football stadiums and swimming pools for the senior high schools in white neighborhoods, while children in the slum areas attend school in firetraps.

"The poor are not poor out of choice, Negroes did not create the ghetto."

"These people have been victims of the kind of system which, as George Bernard Shaw said, forces a man to be a boot-black and then points to his occupation as proof of his inferiority."

Goedeke said three schools built in 1962, six in 1963, five in 1964 and six in 1966 were inner city schools.

NEW YORK (AP) — In "Dear Friends" Wednesday night, playwright Reginald Rose had some adult, incisive observations about people and marriage. As one of the CBS "Playhouse" series, it glittered with excellent performances by an able cast.

For part of the same period, Jack Paar on NBC was presiding over an extremely funny, ingenious hour consisting primarily of photogenic mishaps.

The conflict between two superior programs in very different moods was in deed unfortunate.

"Dear Friends," a two-hour program, centered on a gathering of four married couples, close friends for years, who were ostensibly gathering to try to bring together one pair who had decided to separate.

At the beginning, it appeared that three couples had fine, substantial marriages, but as the liquor flowed and the talk became more emotional and frank, the slim facades crumbled.

Rose told the real stories behind the masks by using a flashback method. He started with the separated couple, played with dignity by Hope Lange and James Daly. Their problem after 15 years of marriage and two children, was quite simply that, as the husband put it, "we don't interest each other any more, we're too... familiar, I guess."

Their friends, while still together, had much worse problems. One wife was insanely jealous of her husband—and with good reason, it turned out. Another couple was concealing, ashamed, the fact that they just didn't want children, and preferred to have the world think they could not have them. A third marriage was a sham because the wife had once been faithless and her husband knew it.

Pernell Roberts and Rosemary Harris were fine as the boorish philandering husband and his tense wife. David Wayne and Anne Jackson played the childless couple convincingly. Eli Wallace and Patricia Barry, were outstanding as the husband whose betrayal still rankled and his troubled wife.

The stripping away of pretense and facing some truths seemed to have a healing effect. At the end there seemed to be some hope for the future of all four couples. It made interesting viewing.

Jack Paar patched together an enormous number of bits from old news reels and some television films that never made the small screens, added some appropriate background music and a droll commentary. It was a most amusing hour.

One section was devoted to falls. Soupy Sales once tried to define humor by saying that when somebody falls down and doesn't get up, it's not funny, but when somebody falls down and does get up, it's funny. All of Paar's falls got up and it was funny, indeed.

Another sequence, culled from television archives, showed frustrated broadcasters trying to read their reports on assorted scenes of action but being constantly interrupted by people walking in front of the camera. There was also the hilarious newsreel showing Mrs. Harry S. Truman vainly attempting to smash a bottle of champagne over the bow of a ship.

The research for the show must have been enormous, but the selections were great and the pace was good.

Conflicts like Wednesday night's are not often found, but they do seem unnecessary. The president of ABC, Thomas Moore once suggested a central registry for special programs to avoid conflicts. It might be well to revive the idea.

Questionable Law Put into Effect

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — The Trenton city administration has announced it will impose fines of $25 beginning Dec. 15 against motorists who fail to lock their car doors.

Mayor Carmen Armenti said Tuesday the city plans to put the ordinance into effect despite the fact that the State Motor Vehicle Division questions its legality.

Armenti said police are being told to ticket cars with unlocked doors as of Dec. 15. The ordinance was passed seven months ago but has not been put into effect until now.

Cleveland Traffic Arrests Down

CLEVELAND (AP) — Arrests in Cleveland for traffic violations are running 38.3 per cent below a year ago for the first 11 months of 1967, a survey showed today. Translated into dollars, the dropoff meant a loss of about $360,000 in city income.

Police sources connected the slump in traffic court business with reduction of traffic squad manpower and elimination last April of a "blitz squad" of 43 men who patrolled in high-accident areas.

Guatemala Engaged In Deadly Internal War

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ
Associated Press Writer

GUATEMALA (AP) — Starting home one evening, a prosperous businessman was about to get in his car when four men wearing national police uniforms stopped him.

Thus Carlos Herrera Dorion, 65, was kidnapped almost in the heart of the city. He was fortunate. Police rescued him four days later without payment of the $150,000 asked.

The day after that case was solved, another prominent industrialist, Jaime Oswaldo Reinos, was machine-gunned to death while driving to his plant outside the city. A specially assigned police bodyguard, riding at his side, was gravely wounded.

In the same week, Guatemala newspapers reported two other kidnappings and three murders.

These are recent examples of swift, muffled violence going on behind the modernistic glow and bustle of this mountaintop capital in Central America. It's the product of a deadly urban war that has claimed over 1,000 lives — perhaps as many as 4,000 — in 16 months.

The conflict is a threat to badly needed stability in a country that has known only thin stretches of peace since U.S. intervention prevented a leftist takeover in 1954.

Behind the violence are four recognizable elements: extremists from the left and right, organized hoodlums and a clandestine police-military operation combating all of them.

A Castroite guerrilla threat to the government of Julio Cesar Mendez Montenegro seems to be liquidated. But die-hards have moved into the urban centers in an effort to acquire new financing for their operations through kidnappings and holdups.

At the same time right-wing extremists, originally mobilized under the name of Mano Blanca (White Hand) to fight the leftist guerrillas, would like to topple the military-backed Mendez regime. They feel its increased taxation and reforms threaten traditional privileges. Some high-ranking officers are known to be sympathetic to the rightists, whose strategy of urban violence is aimed at frightening investors and weakening the national economy.

There are increasing signs, authorities say, that organized outlaw bands, posing either as far rightists or leftists, have moved into the fight purely for profit.

Men in key positions for political evaluation say that despite the upsurge in violence during November, the urban conflict is in its final stages. Internal security thoroughly reorganized with some U.S. aid, is being beefed up with a $10.3-million budget in 1968. Armed forces funds have been trimmed from $14.6 million in 1967 to $14.1 million in next year's $200-million national budget.

Guatemala needs sharp reforms. Of its 4½ million people, 40 per cent live totally outside the national economy. About 77 per cent of the 3 million rural population cannot read or write.

So far, the privileged classes have resisted much change. In some cases they've demonstrated a willingness to negotiate a softening of reforms.

Guatemala Engaged In Deadly Internal War

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ
Associated Press Writer

GUATEMALA (AP) — Starting home one evening, a prosperous businessman was about to get in his car when four men wearing national police uniforms stopped him.

Thus Carlos Herrera Dorion, 65, was kidnaped almost in the heart of the city. He was fortunate. Police rescued him four days later without payment of the $150,000 asked.

The day after that case was solved, another prominent industrialist, Jaime Oswaldo Reinos, was machine-gunned to death while driving to his plant outside the city. A specially assigned police bodyguard, riding at his side, was gravely wounded.

In the same week, Guatemala newspapers reported two other kidnappings and three murders.

These are recent examples of swift, muffled violence going on behind the modernistic glow and bustle of this mountaintop capital in Central America. It's the product of a deadly urban war that has claimed over 1,000 lives — perhaps as many as 4,000 — in 16 months.

The conflict is a threat to badly needed stability in a country that has known only thin stretches of peace since U.S. intervention prevented a leftist takeover in 1954.

Behind the violence are four recognizable elements: extremists from the left and right, organized hoodlums and a clandestine police-military operation combating all of them.

A Castroite guerrilla threat to Notice is hereby given that David S. Cotton whose Post Office address is 611 S. Scioto St., Circleville, Ohio has been duly appointed Administrator of the Estate of Minnie Lee Cotton, late of Pickaway County, Ohio, deceased. Dated this 27th day of November, 1967.

the government of Julio Cesar Mendez Montenegro seems to be liquidated. But die-hards have moved into the urban centers in an effort to acquire new financing for their operations through kidnappings and holdups.

At the same time right-wing extremists, originally mobilized under the name of Mano Blanca (White Hand) to fight the leftist guerrillas, would like to topple the military-backed Mendez regime. They feel its increased taxation and reforms threaten traditional privileges. Some high-ranking officers are known to be sympathetic to the rightists, whose strategy of urban violence is aimed at frightening investors and weakening the national economy.

There are increasing signs, authorities say, that organized outlaw bands, posing either as far rightists or leftists, have moved into the fight purely for profit.

Men in key positions for political evaluation say that despite the upsurge in violence during November, the urban conflict is in its final stages. Internal security thoroughly reorganized with some U.S. aid, is being beefed up with a $10.3-million budget in 1968. Armed forces funds have been trimmed from $14.6 million in 1967 to $14.1 million in next year's $200-million national budget.

Guatemala needs sharp reforms. Of its 4½ million people, 40 per cent live totally outside the national economy.

About 77 per cent of the 3 million rural population cannot read or write.

So far, the privileged classes have resisted much change. In some cases they've demonstrated a willingness to negotiate a softening of reforms.

"THE SHACK" — "The Shack", once notorious as a meeting place for politicians during the Harding administration, has become part of the new Deer Creek Reservoir area southwest of Williamsport.

Clandestine Rendezvous Of Politicians Preserved

By JOHN PURCELL
Herald Staff Writer

The "Shack", labeled by history as the notorious meeting place of politicians during the 1920 Harding Administration, has become part of the Deer Creek Reservoir area near Williamsport.

The cabin belonged to Harry Daugherty, Harding's attorney general, who planned and directed the race for the presidency before Harding knew what was happening.

It was heretofore Daugherty, walking on the lush lawn overlooking Deer Creek first remarked to his companion and confidant Jess Smith, "Gee, what a president Harding would make — some day we will put it over."

Harding, then editor of the Marion Star and the then Washington Courthouse lawyer Daugherty had met only once a few days before.

THE building first became famous as the meeting place of the "Ohio Gang" as politicians who supported Harding, first as senator and later as President, were called.

From the secluded two-story clapping cabin Daugherty convinced Harding to run, purely as a favorite son candidate, at his part's convention. Daugherty explained that such an act would be essential to maintain control of the state's party apparatus.

Unknown to Harding, Daugherty was engineering the ascendancy of Harding, but didn't inform him of the fact until the last two days of the party convention.

Daugherty, as U.S. Attorney General, hosted numerous meetings of prominent politicians, congressmen and foreign representatives at the "Shack" after Harding's presidential victory.

President Harding was frequently among the guests of the political wheeler-dealer Daugherty in this secluded wilderness cabin. There the men could let their hair down away from the public eyes and speak and act straightforwardly.

Hard fold-down beds lined the screened-in back porch of the cabin with its view of the creek. Hunting, fishing, cards and talking politics, as well as more than an occasional political deal, were the past-time at the all male-meetings held here.

"They would come back dirty, hungry after their own cooking, tired and scratched, but thinking they had had the best time of their lives," said the still living Roxy Stinson, ex-wife of Daugherty's confidant from Washington Court House, Jesse Smith.

It was after a visit to this Briar Ridge cabin that Jess Smith returned to the attorney general's Washington, D. C. apartment and committed suicide.

Smith's suicide, second of the administration within a month, raised questions and caused concern about the government.

Scandal in the Veterans Bureau concerning mismanagement and appropriations of funds by Colonel Charles Forbes, a personal Harding appointee, broke shortly afterwards and rocked the administration.

To improve his image and regain the confidence lost by the scandal Harding began a grand tour of the United States and Alaska from which he never returned.

The president died on tour in San Francisco, giving birth to rumors and stories of his possible suicide — or murder.

Deer Creek Dam 94 Per Cent Done

The construction of the dam and dike at Deer Creek Reservoir is over 94 per cent complete. It has been announced by the army corps of engineers.

The main contractor of the dam construct is the Penker Construction Co. of Cincinnati. The contract was in the approximate amount of $9 million.

Engineers now believe that water will be impounded initially in the spring or summer of 1968, Conrad B. Ripley, chief technical liaison officer of the Army Engineers at Huntington, W. Va. states.

However, he noted that initial recreation facilities may not be fully completed at that time.

THE recreation facilities, when completed, will include 125 camp sites, two picnic areas, five miles of access roads two boat launching ramps, and a swimming beach.

There will be about 4,000 acres for recreational use, including 2,300 for general recreation and 1,700 for fish and wildlife.

While the reservoir's primary purpose is flood control in the Scioto River Basin, the federal government also places emphasis on development of general recreational facilities and conservation of fish and wildlife.

The Ohio Department of Natural Resources will operate and maintain all lands as a State

No U.S. Fliers Cracked by Reds

LOS ANGELES (AP) — North Vietnam is believed to be holding 300 American fliers captive but not a single one is known to be a turncoat, says an Air Force Academy official.

Maj. Keith D. Young, who trains cadets in survival, evasion, recovery and escape, said in a speech Wednesday that 750 Air Force and Navy aircraft have been lost over North Vietnam.

He estimated at least half the fliers must be in North Vietnamese custody. Hanoi has not released the exact figure.

"I know of none" who have broken in captivity and renounced the U.S. role, Young asserted.

S. Bloomfield Purchases New Police Car

The South Bloomfield Village Council approved a bid submitted by Wes Edstrom Motors for a 1968 Dodge for use as a police cruiser.

David Kraft was secured for the 1968 calendar year as village attorney.

A discussion was held concerning the sewerage project. The village governing body was informed by FHA that money was not available for the proposed sewer system at this time.

The council members passed a resolution to start condemnation proceedings on the purchase of land for the sewerage site.

Bills totaling $5,111.73 were approved and ordered paid.

Two triple charges were purchased by the council. It was decided to have a Christmas treat again this year. The treat will be passed out on Dec. 23.

Helen Hayes Stars In 'The Show Off'

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP)—A veteran star, Helen Hayes, generates bright new delight in a long-neglected hit, "The Show Off" which was revived Tuesday night at the Lyceum Theater.

George Kelly's comedy of a braggart foiled (maybe) hasn't been on Broadway's stage since 1925 although Spencer Tracy and Red Skelton both had notable screen flings in the old-fashioned lampoon.

This time the dramatic focus shifts slightly, from Clayton Corzette, ruggedly raucous in the title part, to Miss Hayes as the spunky, sparrow-bright mother of a squabbling Philadelphia brood.

Her portrayal in the exhibit, the second in this season's display by the Associated of Producing Artists, is engrossing, hilarious, sharp and tender. It's been a good many years since she has had such comic opportunity.

The story, neatly contrived and old-fashioned corny if you will concerns the chaos which a rattlebrained but intimately wily son-in-law inflicts upon a poor but hontes clan back in the third decade of this 20th Century.

With the principal duo are Gwyda Donhowe and Pamela Payton-Wright, as daughters of varied distress; George Pentecost, the investive son who brings fortune to the family in the nick of time; and Joseph Bird, paternal irascibility in person.

Stephen Porter's direction and James Tilton's setting skillfully project the mood and looks of those days when hearts were younger and maybe gayer. "The Show Off" is a must for any Broadway visitor.

To improve his image and regain the confidence lost by the scandal Harding began a grand tour of the United States and Alaska from which he never returned.

The president died on tour in San Francisco, giving birth to rumors and stories of his possible suicide — or murder.

THE Teapot Dome scandal, regarding government leasing of valuable oil lands, broke shortly after the president's death and brought members of government into increased disrepute.

Daugherty, as Hardings right-hand man, friend, confidant and manager was immediately seized on as a likely culprit.

With this scandal Daugherty returned to the "Shack" to escape public view.

It was then that the cabin made page one headlines as the sinister meeting place and hide-out of unscrupulous politicians who were milking the treasury, though Daugherty himself was never convicted of any crime.

The cabin, with its large rock fireplace and beautiful view of Deer Creek was sold by Daugherty after he finished with it, and apparently passed through two or three hands before the government wanted it as part of the lands adjacent to and overlooking the big new lake of Deer Creek Valley.

Through the efforts of members of the state Natural Resources Commission the cabin will now be preserved as a shelter for wild-life exhibits and a conference place.

The photo above, provided by B. E. Kelley of Washington Court House, was taken in 1919 and was formerly owned by the Daughertys.

While the reservoir's primary purpose is flood control in the Scioto River Basin, the federal government also places emphasis on development of general recreational facilities and conservation of fish and wildlife.

The Ohio Department of Natural Resources will operate and maintain all lands as a State Park except at the dam. Under present plans, the state will contribute $400,000 toward initial development of the recreational facilities, and the federal government costs have been estimated at $800,000.

Relocation of Route 207 and of County Road 25 by D. E. Goodchild, Inc. of Circleville, is over 12 per cent completed. The contract to change the roads was in the amount of over $1 million.

Reservoir clearing by the Appalachian Contracting Co. is under way. The $129,000 job of clearing trees and brush from the lake site was two per cent completed as of Nov. 1 this year.

WORK remaining to be completed at the reservoir site consists of recreational facilities, road relocation of Route 34, construction of operator's quarters, storage facilities and general site development.

The entire project affects about 90 feet tracts of real estate comprising about 7,225 acres, and about 50 flowage easement tracts comprising about 405 acres.

There are 65 tracts in Pickaway County, 50 in Fayette County and 25 in Madison County.

The current status of acquisition shows that 82 fee tracts containing a total of 6,364 acres and 37 easement tracts containing a total of 188 acres have been purchased to date.

The Penker Construction Co. began the dam project in the summer of 1965. Work was originally scheduled to be completed in late 1967, but weather and a labor dispute last summer held up the project.

The minimum pool stage of the reservoir will cover 727 acres.

A seasonal recreational level providing 1,277 acres of surface area will be maintained during the summer months. During maximum flood control stage the area inundated will cover over 4,000 acres.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Try Talking Way Back to Clouds

DEAR ABBY: I am a girl who will be 16 in 2 months, and my mother finally agreed to let me go in cars alone with boys. Well, to make a long story short, this real neat kid who is 18 asked to take me to a drive-in movie last Friday night, and I was on Cloud Sixteen because I've liked him for a long time. My mother said I had to be in by 12:30.

Well, at exactly 12:22 we pulled up in front of our house and we started to talk, and it was 2:10 before we noticed what time it was. Boy, did we ever say good-night fast.

Abby, I swear to God all we did was talk, but I guess my mother doesn't believe me. Now she's grounded me for a whole month. Do you think this is fair? How can I get my mother to give me another chance?

Parkie Scott Plans Appeal

LEBANON, Ohio (AP)—Counsel for Parkie Scott plans to appeal the self-admitted Ku Klux Klan organizer's conviction on charges of interfering with a police officer.

A Warren County court jury deliberated for 2½ hours before convicting the 40-year-old Scott Tuesday after a two-day trial. Judge Paul L. Herdman said he would pass sentence Dec. 18.

Scott, whose farm at nearby Oregonia has been the site of a number of Klan rallies, faces a possible penalty of up to 30 days in jail and up to $500 fine as the result of the incident July 2, 1966.

Scott contended that Sheriff Byron Kennard had no right to enter his farm without a warrant during a Klan rally. The sheriff said Scott drove a truck across a narrow lane to block his way and let the air out of its tires.

High Street PTA Slates Movie

The Parent Teacher Assn. of High Street Elementary School will sponsor a movie, "Melody Time," Saturday with showings scheduled at 1 p.m. and at 3 p.m.

A Walt Disney technicolor production, the film is a musical.

The animation talents of Disney are joined with the musical talents of Dennis Day, Frances Langford, the Andrews Sisters, Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians, Roy Rogers and many others. Seven separate sequences of fact and fable include the adventures of Pecos Bill, the story of Johnny Appleseed, the charm of Once Upon a Wintertime, the courage of Little Toot and other favorites.

Doors of the school will open at 12:45 p.m. Refreshments will be sold at intermission.

Columbus Plant Has Bomb Hoax

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—First trick workers at the Westinghouse plant here were called back to work early today several hours after 500 employees were sent home due to a bomb scare.

The night shift employees were evacuated from the building after the Franklin County Sheriff's Office received an anonymous telephone threat that five sticks of dynamite set to go off at "dinnertime" were in the plant. Nothing was found.

'Medicine Cabinet Roulette' Rapped

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Kids looking for kicks from drugs find "a major supply" in their own homes where they play "medicine cabinet roulette," says Florida's arch foe of dope peddlers.

"Mama's overweight and she's on diet pills... or the old man can't sleep, so he has a supply of sleeping pills... and Aunt Sue's been nervous and upset and she has tranquilizers," said Ray Bellinger, inspector in charge of the Florida State Bureau of Narcotics.

All these prescription pills, he said, are casually stocked in the family bathroom.

"The children are well aware of the colors and shapes of these pills," Bellinger said in an interview, "because they see them in school every day."

In "our pill society," Bellinger said, the children freely turn to their homes for a supply of their own.

Bellinger said he knew of "any number of cases of kids that got involved with pills" found in the home. Some required hospital treatment.

"This is a major supply of drugs for kids," Bellinger said. "The majority of those found in high schools come from the family medicine cabinet."

The newest wrinkle in the Miami area, Bellinger said, involves the smoking of cigarettes made for asthma victims. Several children were hospitalized after smoking the special cigarettes, which can be bought without prescription.

Bellinger said he had started a campaign of telephoning drug-gists, asking them not to sell the cigarettes to minors.

Cough syrup, he said, is a major problem among young people.

"And how they drink all that junk for a drop of codeine is beyond me. It's disgusting. But I've known them to drink up to a quart a day. They drink. They throw up, and then they drink some more," Bellinger said.

Speech Clinic Concludes Fall Session Saturday

The Pickaway County Saturday Speech and Hearing Clinic concludes its fall session on Dec. 9 and will begin its winter session on Jan. 6.

Presently there are 68 children receiving therapy on Saturdays and others waiting to be enrolled. The clinic gives therapy, evaluation and counseling in speech and speech related problems.

The Clinic Supervisor is Dave Spidal, from Oregon, a PHD student at Ohio State.

The Therapists are graduate students at Ohio State. They are Charlene Seymour, Olivia Campbell, Iris Pinerio and Ruh Tex. Charlene's home town is Boston, Mass., Iris is from San Juan, Puerto Rico, Ruth is from Pittsburgh, Pa. and Olivia is from Charleston, W. Va.

WHAT happens when a child is referred to the clinic for

Skydiving Probe Clears Air Center

NEW YORK (AP)—The Cleveland Air Route Traffic Control Center was found innocent Wednesday by the regional headquarters of the Federal Aviation Administration in its investigation of the parachute jump over Lake Erie Aug. 27 in which 16 persons were killed.

The FAA based its findings on the records, tapes and interviews with the pilot and controller.

The jumpers parachuted from an airplane into heavy clouds obscuring the lake.

The FAA said it found the two surviving parachuters at fault for violating FAA regulations by jumping into a cloud cover when they could not see the ground.

The FAA said it also had notified the plane's pilot, Robert B. Karns of Vermilion, Ohio, that it was considering revoking his pilot certificate.

Karns, contacted at home, said "I don't intend to give up my license."

He said he would contest the action.

Earlier in the day, Robert Coy, one of the two surviving jumpers, said the FAA asked him Tuesday to plead guilty to a charge of illegally jumping through a cloud cover.

"I feel they're asking me to show guilt so that it will absolve them in many suits now pending against them," he said.

He said the FAA told him it was willing to clear the matter if he pays a fine of $50.

Firemen Battle West Jeff Blaze

WEST JEFFERSON, Ohio (AP)—Fire hit the Ohio Seed Co. in this Madison County Community Wednesday night, destroying one two-story brick building after firemen from here and surrounding communities battled the blaze for several hours.

The amount of loss was not determined immediately. Fire broke out in a portion of the building where seeds were cleaned and packed.

speech work? An appointment is made for an evaluation at which time the child's articulation (how he makes all the speech sounds) is checked, his hearing is evaluated to see if there is any significant loss and a vocabulary test is given to make a relative test of his language background.

From this information, the teacher's referral and the parent questionnaire a decision is made as to whether or not the child would profit from speech therapy at the clinic. If he could be helped the child is assigned to a therapist and given a specific time for therapy. There is no charge for this service.

No amount of speech therapy will profit the child if he does not have a good sample of speech to follow at home. However, this is not a cause and effect relationship. Each child is different and each child's speech patterns develop differently. There are a few causes of speech problems that can be attributed to home environment.

Parents can put too much pressure on a child and the child will have a slight feeling of fear when he speaks causing him to try to please the parent and thereby not thinking of his speech. The speech of the parent may be such that the child does not have a good example to follow. In such cases the child's speech may be an imitation of the parents speech.

There are numerous other causes of speech problems and the Pickaway County Saturday Speech and Hearing Clinic offers to the people of Pickaway County the opportunity for speech improvement.

The clinic meets on Saturdays at the Mound Street Elementary School in Circleville. Mrs. Paul Schein is coordinator and Mrs. Montford Kirkwood and Mrs. The Pickaway County Society for Crippled Children and Adults offers its service by providing refreshments for the children and the staff.

Van Wert Home Hit by Bomb

VAN WERT, Ohio (AP)—A Bomb exploded early today at the home of Municipal Court Judge Robert L. Harrington but no one was injured, police said.

The judge was the only person in the house at the time. His wife, who is a Probate Court judge, was away.

Considerable damage was done to the home, police said. The explosion was in an entrance way between the house and the garage.

City police said agents from the Ohio Bureau of Criminal Identification were called in to help determine what kind of bomb was used.

Students Help Feed Meters

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — A group of students have been spreading cheer for motorists and consternation for police.

Patrick O'Leary, a Mankato State College student, recruited some girl students to carry buckets of pennies ahead of meter maids and drop them into expired parking meters recently.

O'Leary says the maneuver was arranged as a holiday treat for visitors to Mankato.

Steel Imports Pose Problem To U.S. Firms

PITTSBURGH (AP) — There's a steady and growing flow of foreign steel into the United States adding to the problems of the nation's steel industry.

The shipments are coming from 42 nations.

Some of the countries are hardly considered steel-producing nations, for instance, Costa Rica, British Guiana and the Dominican Republic.

Five Communist-ruled nations are on the list: Poland, East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Lithuania.

If you live in a home built recently, chances are good the nails came from Japan. Japan leads all other nations in exporting steel to America.

Until a decade ago, this country exported more steel than it imported. The situation was reversed in 1959, and since then, foreign producers have steadily increased imports to America. Last year, imports hit a record 10.7 million tons, 11 per cent of U.S. steel consumption. Imports in the first nine months of this year ran 3 per cent ahead of last year.

In the current steel price increase in this country, fear has been expressed by some that higher domestic prices may push up imports.

Industry people say import tonnage will go up, but not because U.S. prices are going up. They say foreign prices will increase right along with domestic prices, and assert that any stepup in imports will be caused by worldwide economic factors which led to substantial foreign imports in the first place.

Wednesday, U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's biggest steelmaker, and second-ranked Bethlehem Steel Corp. announced their second price hike in a week. U.S. Steel went up $5 a ton on galvanized and aluminum coated sheets, and Bethlehem went up $5 a ton on galvanized sheets.

Last Friday, U.S. Steel boosted its price on cold rolled sheets, and a number of other producers, including Bethlehem followed suit.

Foreign producers are able to carve deeper inroads in the American market for the simple reason they can make steel cheaper because of lower labor costs.

"The Japanese could undersell us by $40 a ton if they wanted to," one Pittsburgh steel executive said.

But foreigners are having profit problems, too. A number of foreign steelmakers are getting subsidies from their governments just to keep above water.

GOP Governors Eye Vietnam, '68 Race

By JACK BELL
AP Political Writer
PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Most Republican governors agree the GOP must support the basic Vietnam war commitment in the 1968 election campaign while offering a fresh White House team dedicated to ending the fighting.

Opinions gathered by The Associated Press from GOP state executives who begin campaign planning sessions here Friday focused on the theme that President Johnson has become so locked in his position that only a new president can negotiate peace.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York will report at the conference on an in-depth study of potential campaign issues, including Vietnam. The governors, most of them moderates, hope it will form the basis of recommendations for specific platform plans.

Although they seemed in general agreement on issues, all but a few governors were refraining from committing themselves to any potential presidential nominee until next year's primaries show significant trends.

Of the 20 governors willing to participate in the AP canvass, 13 said they have no choice now for the nominee, Gov. John A. Love of Colorado, retiring chairman of the Republican Governors Association, seemed to sum up this group's views in saying: "I want a winner. I want to elect a Republican president."

Michigan Gov. George Romney's announced candidacy for the nomination appeared to have little impact on his colleagues.

Romney drew the support of only Govs. John H. Chafee of Rhode Island, incoming chairman of the association, and New York's Rockefeller. Both of them previously had put themselves in his corner.

Rockefeller, who has said he is not a candidate and doesn't want to be president, had the open support of Govs. Tom McCall of Oregon, Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland and his brother, Winthrop Rockefeller of Arkansas. Another governor who asked that his name not be used favored Rockefeller or Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois.

Five governors said they think Rockefeller would rate the best chance to beat Johnson in the general election. One picked former Vice President Richard M. Nixon and one Romney. The rest said any of the leading candidates for the nomination could do the job.

Man Sentenced To Life Terms

FREMONT, Ohio (AP)—Everett Lloyd Johns, 27, Sandusky was sentenced by a three judge panel Wednesday to life imprisonment on each of two counts of first degree murder.

Johns was charged with the fatal shooting of Galen Lorenz, 39, Fremont, and Mrs. Anna Mae Kuhns, 52, Clyde, whose bodies were found on a county road near Clyde last New Year's Day.

He changed his plea from innocent to guilty at the start of his trial last Monday, but the judges went ahead hearing testimony.

Southern Solons Cornered By School Bill Wording

WASHINGTON (AP) — Southern senators battling to write restrictions on enforcement of civil rights laws into the school aid bill are under intense pressure to match the success of a relatively unknown House colleague.

They give this explanation for the fight they are making which has helped to tie up indefinitely final passage of the $14.2 billion bill—a war they did not wage on previous federal aid to education legislation.

The House member is Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N.C. With little fuss, he was able both this year and last to get into the House version of the elementary and secondary school bill a provision which would cut back sharply on federal powers under the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

The amendment would bar the Health, Education and Welfare Department from deferring approval of aid applications from school districts believed to be practicing racial segregation.

Instead, HEW would have to go through a lengthy, formal

CINCINNATI (AP) — Claude Sullivan, the "Voice of the Cincinnati Reds," died at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., Wednesday following a two-year bout with throat cancer.

The 43-year-old Sullivan, whose broadcasting career spanned 24 years, became the top announcer for the National League baseball team in 1965.

During the same year, tests revealed that Sullivan had cancer. He started treatment at Mayo Clinic and as late as last month was reported making good progress.

Sullivan, a native of Winchester, Ky., was executive vice president of the Bluegrass Broadcasting Co., headquartered in Lexington.

Circleville Tigers Face 3rd Rugged Weekend of Play

Still feeling the effect of four straight losses, the Circleville high school basketball team travels to Washington C. H. Friday seeking an initial victory in the South Central Ohio League.

On Saturday the Tigers are on the road again, traveling to Reynoldsburg.

The opening schedule for Circleville has been one of the most rugged undertaken by any area team. There are three weekend twinbills — two of them now history — and the back to back games have had a telling effect. Opening losses by the Tigers have been at the hands of Westfall, probably one of the better class A teams in central Ohio, to Chillicothe, always a cage power; to Wilmington, perennial contender for the South Central Ohio League title; and to Grandview, a rugged Columbus area quintet.

THERE will be no "breathers" for Circleville this year.

Although Washington is winless this season, the Blue Lions always provide a formidable foe for Circleville.

Cliff Joslin has been the leading scorer for Washington, notching 14 points, 20 points and seven points in three starts. Lowell Harper has scored a total of 22 points in three games.

After the first game of the season, Blue Lion Coach Jim Wilson said "I believe we'll get better every game, and in a few weeks we should have a pretty good team."

With youth highlighting the Circleville attack, Coach Hill also expects the Tigers to improve as the season progresses. In the last two games, Hill

San Diego State and Kentucky Wesleyan are viewing for the leading small-college basketball position vacated by Southern Illinois. But dark horse Southwestern Louisiana seems to be making a big pitch.

The Bulldogs from Lafayette, La. have beaten major opponents North Texas State and Baylor in their two starts this season, and are ninth in The Associated Press' first poll of the 1967-68 campaign.

Jackson Still Unbeaten in Jr. High Loop

Jackson stands as the lone undefeated team in the Pickaway County Junior High basketball league today. The Wildcats dumped previously unbeaten Ashville, 39-26, Wednesday.

In other league action, Scioto got back on the winning track, dumping Walnut, 54-16; Washington edged Monroe, 32-31; Salt Creek topped Pickaway, 57-27.

Bruce Beatty, Mark Schein and Tom Cook paced the win-10 points respectively. For Ashville, Joe Lombardo notched eight.

Salt Creek won its third league game, stopping Pickaway, 57-27. Steve Fischer, eighth grade guard for the Warriors, poured 23 points through the hoops while his running-mate at guard, Bobby Brown, accounted for 14.

THE leading scorer for Pickaway's Pirates was Brad Barr with a 9 point effort.

Salt Creek led at the end of the first quarter and at the half. Pickaway pulled ahead for a brief period in the third quarter but the Warriors exploded in the final frame, when Pickaway's ace, Brad Barr, was sidelined with an ankle injury.

Washington won its first game of the year, edging past Monroe, 32-31. Jeff Young scored 12 points for the winners.

Jackson stands at the top of the league with a 5-0 record.

Ashville and Scioto are tied for a second with 4-1 records. Salt Creek is fourth with a 3-2 slate while Pickaway, Monroe, Washington and Walnut are all 1-4 for the season.

Westley Unseld appears headed for his greatest season in college basketball.

The 6-foot-8 All-America for the University of Louisville got the key baskets and the key rebounds in leading the Cardinals to a 57-51 victory over the Kansas Jayhawks Wednesday night.

A sellout 17,000 turned out at Lawrence, Kan., for the battle between the nationally third-ranked Cardinals and the fourth-ranked Jayhawks that headlined a busy night on the college hardwoods.

Unseld threw in 20 points, the same total as his teammate Butch Beard, but it was Unseld's free throw with 6:12 left that put Louisville ahead to stay at 45-44.

"While Beard meant a lot in the stretch," said Louisville Coach John Dromo, "the guy who was the real difference was Unseld. He got the key buckets and particularly the key rebound when we needed it. I thought our zone defense was fabulous in the clutch."

Jo-Jo White's layup put Kansas within 47-46, but as Owens put it "Louisville had the poise and the patience to make the plays when it mattered."

Fourth-ranked North Carolina and ninth-ranked Kentucky, the other teams in The Associated Press Top Ten to see action, enjoyed home court romps.

Duke, led by Steve Vandenberg's 23 points, crushed Michigan at Ann Arbor 93-72, but West Virginia pulled out a 65-63 home court triumph over St. John's of New York when Jim Lewis tallied three points in the last 48 seconds to erase a 63-62 Redmen lead.

In other major games Virginia Tech edged Wake Forest 71-67, American U. beat Navy 63-59, Cornell whipped Syracuse 88-70, Georgetown, D.C., upset St. Joseph's Pa. 86-74, Penn nipped Rutgers 71-70, Army squeaked past Seton Hall 74-70, Yale overcame Fordham 84-73, Tulsa humbled North Dakota State 88-55, Oklahoma City defeated Southern Methodist 90-73 and Niagara Swamped Villa Madonna 114-66 behind 57 points by soph Calvin Murphy in his second varsity game.

North Carolina State downed Maryland 75-62, New Mexico whipped Pepperdine 93-58, Utah State downed Montana State 88-80, Chicago Loyola routed Eastern Michigan 102-78 and California rallied from 10 points back to beat the St. Mary's Gaels 76-69.

The Bulldogs from Lafayette, La. have beaten major opponents North Texas State and Baylor in their two starts this season, and are ninth in The Associated Press' first poll of the 1967-68 campaign.

San Diego State heads the ranking teams followed in order by Kentucky Wesleyan, Indiana State, Trinity, Tex., Akron, Evansville, Cheyney State, Winston-Salem, SW Louisiana and Long Island University.

Southern Illinois, the leader in the final small-college poll and the National Invitation Tournament winner last year, was given major-college designation by the U.S. Basketball Writers Association this season on the strength of its tougher schedule.

In the initial voting by a national panel of 12 sports writers and broadcasters, San Diego State drew three first-place votes and 52 points. The balloting, based on games through last Saturday, was on a point basis of 10 for a first-place vote, 9 for second, 8 for third, etc.

The Top Ten, with first-place votes in parentheses and total points on a 10-9-7-etc basis:

1. San Diego St. (3) 52
2. Kentucky Wesleyan (1) 46
3. Indiana State (1) 37

Pheasant Hunting Plan Set

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Division of Wildlife will offer an experimental program of premium pheasant hunting from Dec. 13 through Jan. 6.

The division said Wednesday 500 pheasants will be released in each of three selected wildlife areas — Indian Creek in Brown County, Delaware Wildlife Area in Delaware County, and Grand River in Trumbull County.

One hunt will be conducted each Wednesday from 9 a.m. until noon, and two hunts each Saturday from 9 a.m. until noon and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Forty hunters will be issued permits in each scheduled hunt on a first-come, first-serve basis.

The division also said hunters have been invited to participate in a grouse hunting field day Dec. 16 at the Highlandtown wildlife area near Lisbon, and the Waterloo wildlife experiment station near Athens.

Cotton Controls Too Good; Shortage Faced In U.S.

By OVID A. MARTIN
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal farm program to cure a cotton surplus headache has worked well—so well that the government and farmers now fear the nation may face a shortage of home-grown cotton.

The program has done in two years what it was expected to take four years to accomplish: Make room in the market for a record large surplus.

Now, at the halfway point in its planned operation, the program has forced reductions in cotton supplies that have driven prices up, generated heavy speculation in cotton futures delivery markets and raised the threat of a shortage.

When the 1966 crop was planted there was a record large surplus of nearly 17 million bales—most of it tied up in government hands under grower price-support programs. At that time, domestic and export markets required only about 13 million bales a year.

Congress authorized a four-year program under which farmers would be offered substantial payments for cutting back sharply on production. This reduction was designed to make room in markets for the surplus.

The 1966 and 1967 crops were reduced sufficiently to allow markets to absorb all the surplus. This quicker-than-expected reduction in supplies, aided by bad weather, has been accompanied by sharp price advances.

The government program would seek a 65 per cent increase over this year's very small crop of 7.9 million bales. It aims at encouraging growers to plant larger acreages by reducing the payments for idling land.

But many cotton industry leaders doubt the 1968 program will encourage as large an acreage as the government has recommended. Some are urging the Agriculture Department to revise the program by further reducing payment rates.

The price upturn this year is running counter to one of the purposes of the cotton program: To keep U.S. prices fully competitive with foreign cotton and with man-made fibers.

That price would need to average 21 cents a pound. But recently prices have been running close to 27 cents, a price officials say would put cotton at a market disadvantage.

Soviet Arms Are Blocked In Yemen

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Royalist reports from Yemen today said the Royalists had cut off the capital city of San'a to prevent Russian military equipment from arriving for the besieged Republican government.

Royalist sources in Beirut in contact with their leaders at home said the road from the Red Sea port of Hodeida to San'a was cut after the Royalist command "learned that Soviet armored forces were going to land at Hodeida."

They said San'a was cut off from all sides and the Royalists were attempting to damage the airport to prevent Russian supplies from arriving by plane.

Egyptian troops have been the chief bulwark of the Yemeni Republicans, but the last of these are scheduled to leave Hodeida Friday, Egypt's Middle East News Agency reported Wednesday from San'a that the Republican government had begun issuing arms to people of the city "to protect the gains of the revolution."

No confirmation was available for any of the reports.

The Royalists earlier this week claimed they had downed a Russian-made MIG jet piloted by a Russian. The Royalists had previously claimed that Russians were fighting for the Republicans but never presented conclusive proof.

One Western source who returned from San'a recently said a team of Soviet technicians had arrived in the capital to assemble jet planes which were shipped to Yemen in crates. Republican Foreign Minister Hassan Micky recently visited Moscow and informed sources there said he signed an agreement for Russian warplanes to bolster the Republicans.

Public Gets Look at Cabinet Meeting

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson continues to mix the tried and true with the totally unexpected—like making another anti-inflation pitch to business leaders after breaking tradition to give the press a rare peek at a Cabinet meeting.

The President's orthodox economic sentiments were delivered at an off-the-record dinner meeting of the prestigious Business Council, composed of about 190 leaders of the biggest industrial and financial corporations. His text was made public later.

Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, chairman of the board of trustees of the National Geographic Society at the time of his death, combined a half dozen careers in his active lifetime. He was a distinguished editor, geographer, scientist, writer and administrator.

Johnson gave the public a second-hand look at a formal Cabinet meeting earlier Wednesday by admitting three reporters and permitting them to take complete notes and report their findings. The reporters weren't shooed out until Director Richard Helms of the Central Intelligence Agency began briefing the Cabinet on latest national security developments.

In his speech to the Business Council, Johnson coupled his anti-inflation plea with a new attack on trade protectionists, a call for expanded exports, an appeal for voluntary business efforts to promote a healthy balance of payments and some pointed remarks about a recent attack on the dollar by speculators.

Johnson said the speculative attack has been "decisively repelled" but added "we cannot rest on this victory."

He declared "we must look beyond gold" to the kind of supplementary monetary reserves agreed on in September by most non-Communist nations.

The reserves needed to finance expanding world trade, he said, "need not rest on the uncertainties of gold production, consumption and speculation."

His wage-price appeal was a familiar one: Labor should "restrain its demands for excessive wage increases" and business should "refrain from avoidable price increases" and "intensify its competitive efforts."

As for import restrictions, Johnson said the race for trade cannot be won if the United States is "confined by the quotas or high tariff walls the protectionists demand."

At the Cabinet meeting, Chairman John W. Macy of the Civil Service Commission reported on efforts to make it easier for citizens to do business with their government. When Macy said some agencies are staying open Saturdays and one evening a week, the President wanted to know how much this was costing.

Not much, Macy replied. When Macy said a determined effort is being made to get bureaucrats to answer their mail more promptly, the Chief Executive commented: "I've been shocked at some of the delay here in the White House."

He ordered each Cabinet secretary to determine—and report to him by Dec. 20—how long it takes their departments to respond to mail from Congress members and the public.

Johnson added that as a senator, he made it a rule to answer mail within 24 hours. But he noted with tongue in cheek that Cabinet officers generally are not running for public office and may not be so concerned about voters' feelings.

Famed Art Object 50 Year-Old Fake

NEW YORK (AP)—The Metropolitan Museum of Arts says its famous bronze horse, long considered a masterpiece of ancient Greek art, is a 50-year-old fake.

The museum startled 800 patrons attending a seminar on art forgery Wednesday night when it revealed for the first time that the horse it regarded as "the quintessence of the ancient Greek spirit," was merely a famous fraud.

The horse was probably cast in Paris shortly after World War I rather than in Greece around 470 B.C., the museum said.

The 15-inch statue purchased by the museum in 1923 was even acclaimed by the Encyclopedia Britannica for its beauty and grace. It was so famous and popular that several thousand plaster casts were made and sold. They are still on sale.

The museum doesn't know who the forger was but a thin line and a couple of holes gave him away, said James V. Noble, Metropolitan vice director for administration and the man who saw through the whole thing.

The line was a filed-down mold mark which proved the horse was cast in a process not developed until the 14th Century.

One of the holes was for an iron or bronze spike used on life-sized statues to chase birds away. It's unneeded on a 15-inch statue, Noble said. The other hole was for a bridle attachment but it was too far from its proper spot, Noble explained.

He first made these deductions in 1961, immediately took the horse off the museum floor and began an investigation that ranged through museums around the world.

Christmas Mail Deadline Shortened

A mailing weekend is missing this holiday season and Circleville Postmaster Charles Walters and the post office department today expressed concern that the public doesn't realize it's not there.

To make up for the lost time, postal officials across the nation are urging persons to set aside this weekend (Dec. 9-10) to prepare their gifts and greetings for mailing.

"We want next Saturday and Sunday to be known as Christmas Card Weekend," Postmaster General Lawrence F. OBrien said. "Those two days are critical. It is imperative that a large percentage of our holiday mail be generated over the weekend."

The Postmaster General pointed out that the last delivery day for Christmas mail is December 23, thus there are but two mailing weekends left.

He expressed the fear of many postal executives that the vast majority of the public feels there still are three mailing weekends before Christmas and will wait until the weekend of December 16 to address their cards and wrap their parcels. This could mean an unbearable avalanche of last minute mail, more than the already straining postal service can deliver before the holiday.

"Massive late mailings, coupled with poor weather across the nation, could spell postal disaster this Christmas. During December, the postal service will handle about as much mail as most major countries handle in a year or more," he said. "Early mailing and the use of ZIP Codes will assure on-time delivery of all holiday mail."

Romney Attacks Credibility Gap

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Republican presidential aspirant George Romney, like Democratic Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York, contends the Johnson administration has changed its reasons for pursuing the war in Vietnam.

The Michigan governor told an audience in Manhattan, Kan., Wednesday the administration said in 1965 the United States was fighting to help South Vietnam ward off Communist aggression from the North.

Now, Romney said, the administration talks of "self interest and national interest" in defending its war policy.

Kennedy made similar remarks in a CBS television interview on Nov. 26.

"The present administration policy will not lead to anything desirable," Romney said. "The Vietnam tail is wagging our global dog."

One of President Johnson's staunch supporters on the war issue, the AFL-CIO, said Vietnam and white backlash in the wake of Negro riots are bound to give him trouble in the 1968 election campaign.

The 14-million-member labor federation said in a political analysis released at its convention headquarters in Miami Beach, Fla., that "our military involvement will continue as a disturbing and divisive issue." It added that "public hostility toward legitimate civil rights progress will almost certainly stiffen as a result of urban violence."

"The luck of the draw is with the conservatives in 1968," the AFL-CIO analysis added.

Another figure in the presidential picture has troubles of a different sort—more than half the people surveyed in one poll have never heard of him.

The Gallup Poll reported it conducted the survey nationwide last month to test public recognition of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy's name. Gallup said only 58 per cent reported ever reading or hearing about the Minnesota Democrat.

Rhodes Pays Los Angeles Short Visit

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes pays Los Angeles a brief visit for a speaking engagement today before moving on to Palm Beach, Fla., for the Republican Governor's Conference.

Rhodes arrives in California following an appearance in Dallas, Tex., Wednesday night as part of a cross-country tour which ends when he returns to Columbus this weekend.

In Dallas, Rhodes told newsmen he is not a candidate for the 1968 Republican vice presidential nomination.

Rhodes, who described his five-day, 8,000 mile journey as "a merchandising and marketing business trip to sell Ohio's business attitude and climate," also addressed the National Aviation Trades Association convention and the National Air Taxi Conference.

King Faces Labor Revolt

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Frank King, president of Ohio's AFL-CIO, has been accused of violating that group's constitution.

The labor group's Shawnee District Council, composed of Adams, Pike and Scioto counties, leveled charges in a recent letter to state AFL-CIO Secretary-Treasurer Warren Smith.

The council claims King cannot give equal time to the labor group for which he is paid $16,000 annually, and to his Ohio Senate seat.

The council also contends King cannot possibly maintain residence in Columbus and in Lucas County, from which he was elected to the Senate, at the same time.

"The president shall devote full time to the office of president and shall maintain a residence in Columbus or one of its suburbs," states the Ohio AFL-CIO Constitution.

Action will be taken next month at the executive board meeting, the council said.

University Buys Growth Stocks

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—The University of Cincinnati plans to buy more growth stocks in the future instead of sticking to high-grade corporate bonds that yield a fixed return.

Meyers said it now takes $400,000 invested at straight interest to pay a professor's salary and added that UC's $35-million endowment fund earns only about $1 million a year toward a $58.5-million operating budget.

beyond gold" to the kind of supplementary monetary reserves agreed on in September by most non-Communist nations.
The reserves needed to finance expanding world trade, he said, "need not rest on the uncertainties of gold production, consumption and speculation."
His wage-price appeal was a familiar one: Labor should "restrain its demands for excessive wage increases" and business should "refrain from avoidable price increases" and "intensify its competitive efforts."
As for import restrictions, Johnson said the race for trade cannot be won if the United States is "confining by the quotas or high tariff walls the protectionists demand."
At the Cabinet meeting, Chairman John W. Macy of the Civil Service Commission reported on efforts to make it easier for citizens to do business with their government.

When Macy said some agencies are staying open Saturdays and one evening a week, the President wanted to know how much this was costing.
Not much, Macy replied.
When Macy said a determined effort is being made to get bureaucrats to answer their mail more promptly, the Chief Executive commented: "I've been shocked at some of the delay here in the White House."
He ordered each Cabinet secretary to determine—and report to him by Dec. 20—how long it takes their departments to respond to mail from Congress members and the public.
Johnson added that as a senator, he made it a rule to answer mail within 24 hours. But he noted with tongue in cheek that Cabinet officers generally are not running for public office and may not be so concerned about voters' feelings.
